ley's big problem at present as he lays final plans for the Harvard game. The appearance this week on the practice field of Dan Hill, ex-Duke star, is expected to strengthen the pivot spot where Joe Kovach, Jack Daly and Edmond Kelly hold forth. Backs and ends are plentiful and the guards have demonstrated the ability to take care of themselves.

Running at left halfback are Len Eshmont (180), Louis Bufalino (170), Art Jones (185), and Walter Zwierzynski (175). At right halfback are Bob Blood (160), Ray Harkins (165), Mort Landsberg (180) and John Stovall (165).

The fullback spot is well-manned with Joe Martin (195), Dan McKinnon (195), Hovey Seymour (185) and Fred Vanzo (215) on call. The quarterbacks include Bill Clark (175), Bill Krywicki (165), Eugene Davis (190), Frank Zazula (170) and Charles Gauer (195).

Blood, Krywicki, Eshmont and Vanzo started in the backfield against Catawba.

At the terminals, Crowley has what should be enough weight and speed to make things uncomfortable for the opposing backs. Bob King (185), and Hayward Sanford (190) started against Catawba and had able relief in Frank Moister (190), James Kimbriel (180), Harold Boudreau (185) and John Witkowski (190).

Top guards last week were James Boyd (190), Charles Pierce (180) and Bob Storey (200). At left guard, behind Storey and Pierce are John Economos (185), who was on the sick list last week, and A. S. Roth (190). At right guard with Boyd are Louis Tisch (185), Page Wodell (185) and L. A. Young (190).

Cadet Steve Hudacek (195), a regular on Crowley's fine Fordham team last season, received the nod at that position, and teamed with N. N. Langdale (205) in the season's opener. Drawing much comment for his crashing tactics that broke up many a Catawba play was Herb Maack (197), and the play of Leo Frohe (190) also received more than passing attention. Other tackle aspirants are Don Brennan (195) and Allan Sturges (190), both of whom are expected to see a lot of service before the campaign's end.

Crowley divided his squad Monday, keeping fifty on the varsity group and organizing a "B" squad that will play a regular schedule with North Carolina colleges this season.

TAR HEELS

reserved for University students.

Officers of the Pre-Flight school may buy either a special season's pass book to the Carolina and Navy home games similar to that sold to the University faculty members or else they may buy tickets to the individual games.

Coaching the Tar Heels this year is a brand new set of mentors, the first all-alumni coaching staff in 24 years. Heading the staff is Head Coach Jim Tatum, former Carolina standout at tackle, who is taking over for Lieut. Ray Wolf during the latter's tenure at the Georgia Pre-Flight school. Others on the staff include Grady Pritchard, line coach, Andy Bershak, end coach, and Tom Young, backfield coach.

The complete schedule follows:

- Sept. 26—Wake Forest—home
- Oct. 3—South Carolina—home
- Oct. 10—Fordham—away
- Oct. 17—Rice—home
- Oct. 24—Tulane—away
- Oct. 31—N. C. State—away
- Nov. 7—Davidson—away
- Nov. 14—Duke—home
- Nov. 21—Virginia—away

Aviator Wins Naval Cross Award

A Naval aviator—Lieut. Noel A. M. Gayler, 28, of Bremerton, Wash.—last week became the first U. S. hero ever to receive three Navy Cross awards, when Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox presented him with a gold star in lieu of a third Navy Cross.

Devastators Score 39 Points To Win Summer Sports Title

By CADET FRANK FORD

The hard-driving Devastators edged out the eleven other squadrons to gain the hotly contested championship of the summer sports program which was concluded recently. The Devastators rolled up 39 points.

Finishing one notch behind were the Helldivers, in turn one point ahead of the Kingfishers and Mustangs who tied for third. Half a point behind were the Catalinas in the fifth spot. The Buffaloes, Wildcats, Coronados, Mariners, Vindicators, Skyrockets and Buccaneers followed in that order, scoring 35, 34½, 30, 29½, 28, 20½ and 19, respectively.

These totals indicate the performances of the squadrons as a whole, averaging their weekly showings against one another in all the six sports which comprised the afternoon competitions.

The Devastators remained modestly content to garner the most total points, leaving the crown in each sport to their rivals.

Outstanding among the first place teams in the individual sports were the Mustang touch-footballers. The Mustangs bucked their way through thirteen games without being checked, the only team not saddled with a single defeat.

The Mariners' soccer team kicked like centipedes through 10 victories and were tripped only three times. The Mariner maulers also won distinction in wrestling, their grapplers emerging with eight scalps and two cabbages.

In boxing, the hard-hitting Helldivers took the belt in 10 matches, hit the canvas in two and tied one. The Wildcats and the Coronados breasted the tape neck-and-neck in military track, each having chalked up seven and dropped three. The limelight was shared in swimming also, with the Buffaloes and Vindicators each showing eight victories and two defeats.
