

'B' Football Team Plans Approved

By CADET R. L. W. FLAVELLE

Formation of a "B" football team to serve as a proving ground for the varsity Cloudbusters and to play regularly scheduled games with neighboring schools, has been approved by Comdr. O. O. Kessing.

Lt. Comdr. James H. Crowley, head gridiron coach, announced that Lt. (jg) N. J. Pierce, one of the "Seven Blocks of Granite" on his undefeated 1937 Fordham team, will handle the junior squad. Pierce was on Crowley's staff at Fordham last year, and has been coaching the Cloudbuster guards this season. Ensign Richard P. Cassiano, former Pitt star, will assist Pierce.

The schedule has not yet been announced, but two games are booked thus far with negotiations underway for several more.

The "B" team will be the minor league for all future gridsters aspiring to the varsity. Cadets will be required to show their worth on the junior team before being graduated to the big 'Busters.

Varsity Soccer Practice Begins On Monday

Practice for varsity soccer will begin on Monday, Sept. 28, Lieut. Earle C. Waters, head coach of soccer has announced. The sport will be played under the international soccer rules, rather than on the 8-man basis devised by the Pre-Flight School.

No announcement can yet be made on the schedule which is still being drawn up.

Cadets interested in trying out for the team should report to Lieut. Waters following their sports program muster on Monday. They must first, however, inform their athletic director of their intention to play the varsity sport.

Hayward Sanford, place-kicking specialist from the University of Alabama, is scheduled to team with Goodreault at end, with Herb Maack, of Columbia, and Steve Hudacek, of Fordham, handling the tackle spots.

Jim Boyd, of Temple, and Charles Pierce, of Fordham, will be the guards, and another Fordham man, Joe Kovach will be at center.

The kick-off is scheduled for 1430, but the game will not be broadcast.

Cadets To See Tar Heel Grid Opener Today

A determined group of Tar Heels will come forth on Kenan Stadium this afternoon set to turn back the hard-charging Wake Forest Deacons in the season's opener for both elevens. The kickoff is slated for 3 o'clock, and a crowd of close to 12,000 is expected to be on hand.

The entire Pre-Flight regiment of cadets will be guests of the University Athletic Association at this afternoon's Southern Conference battle and they will occupy the end two sections on the south side of the field next to the four student sections.

GRAFF

Academy Alumni and was president of the Philadelphia Chapter in 1940-41.

For several years he held the post of sales manager of the Fuel Oil and Oil Burner Division of the Standard Oil Co. of Pennsylvania, and worked and resided in Philadelphia, Pa.

In March of this year, having passed the Navy physical examination, he was ordered into active service as Executive Officer of the Pre-Flight School at Chapel Hill. He was one of the first officers on the scene and watched the school grow from an idea to its present magnitude.

Incidentally, he claims he was the oldest lieutenant, junior grade, in the Navy, until promotion to lieutenant commander came in July.

But no matter what his rank, his presence could never go unheeded for he is a big man, authoritative looking, and his ability to do a job no matter how tough marks him for what he is.

And it is to Lt. Comdr. Graff that the commendation, "Well done," and the wish for his future success must come from all hands of this station.

POST OFFICE

groan under the weight of the morning mail.

It is estimated that Johnny Cadet receives an average of two, and, sometimes three letters daily, and slightly more than one parcel post package from thoughtful mothers and aunts who cannot be convinced that Johnny is getting enough to eat. The majority of the parcels contain cake, candy, cigarettes, and, occasionally, fried chicken.

Hotly contesting the cadets' per capita supremacy in the receipt of letters is the Navy Band, whose members carry on an extensive correspondence with a host of admirers. The band boys are undisputed postal card champions, and rank first as users of the special delivery service.

Johnny Cadet is adept with the pen, himself. Heavier morning collections from the dormitories sometimes total four thousand outgoing letters. The most persistent user of the letter drop in Alexander Hall is the Publicity and Public Relations Department, which threatens to drown newspaper editors in a flood of Pre-Flight publicity, and frequently causes the letter drop to overflow.

Johnny Cadet's letters are intriguing to the eye. Envelopes are frequently adorned with artistic pictures and witty proverbs, and bear mysterious initialings, such as, "S. W. A. K." and "S. M. R. L. H." Often they are sealed with reddish smudges that might possibly be poignant reminders that some lipstick is non-kiss-proof.

In all departments, the postal service is growing rapidly. In the 40 days, since the Pre-Flight Station came into official existence, 500 parcels have been insured, a hundred fifty letters registered, and more than three hundred Money Orders issued, totalling over thirteen thousand dollars.

The mail is distributed three times daily at 0900, 1200, and 1700. On Sunday there is one delivery at 1400.

The personnel of the Pre-Flight Station is composed of: F. E. Strowd, Csp.; W. F. Pendergraph, Sp. 1/c; A. A. Barker, Sp. 2/c, and B. G. Leonard, Jr., Sp. 3/c.
