Cruising With Covey

By DAVID Y. COVERSTON, Y2c
Sailor Novelist—Do you like sport fiction? Take a tip, scan the sheets of the current issue of Sports Stories, and read the rip snorting football novelette entitled, "Ivy League Invader," written by Burgess Leonard, Sp.3c of our post office and regular contributor of feature articles to the CLOUDBUSTER.

New Hands Aboard—Recent arrivals in the Ship's Company include John Doty, SK1c, Rodney Skaggs, RM1c, and Al Wadner, Sp(P)1c. Doty came up from the Naval Reserve Air Base, Atlanta, Ga., on the day following an addition to his family; Skaggs arrived from Charleston, S. C., after duty on the USS Rodman; and Wadner was sent here after enlisting in Cincinnati.

Bells and Rings—Charles Richards, SM2c, and Lester Stuckey, RM3c, each took unto himself a bride within the past fortnight to "have and to hold" as long as the BuPers, Skipper, and Navy Sec'y will allow. . . . Carl Bryan, SK2c, has announced his engagement to a Chapel Hillian, with the bells scheduled to toll in a very short time.

Commissioned—Lt. (jg) Joseph Getelka is the signature now being used by the former "Mad Russian" of the disbursing office and small stores room. The "Man from Moscow" came to the Pre-Flight School as SK3c, and is the fourth SK to be commissioned in recent weeks.

Correction—In reporting promotions in the officers' ranks last week, we erred by elevating the following Lt. (jg)s to full lieutenants: Simon J. Golden, Robert E. Howe, Harry L. Lawrence, Warren E. Lentz, Henry L. Reese, Thurman R. Ward, and Walter Wood. The mistake is regretted by us too, and we hope they make it next time.

British Admiral Praises Grumman Fighting Planes

Vice Admiral John H. Towers, USN, received a message recently from Rear Admiral A. L. St. G. Lyster, RN, who has an important command at sea in the Royal Navy, praising the performance of the RAF's "Martlet" fighting planes during Mediterranean convoy operations reinforcing the embattled forces on the island of Malta.

The British "Martlets" are the U. S. Navy's famous Grumman "Wildcats" which have fought so successfully in every Pacific engagement of the war to date.

Admiral Lyster stated that the Grumman fighters had given the enemy plenty of trouble.

The Academic Coordinator

More than two decades of association with Ohio State University—first as a student, then as an executive and educator—were interrupted last January, when Lieut. Howard L. Hamilton, head of the Academic Department, entered the Navy on leave of absence from the university for the duration.

From the time he entered Ohio State in 1920, his life was linked continuously with the Buckeye school, with the exception of the first year following graduation in 1924. In the summer of 1924 he worked on a real estate indexing project in Columbus, O., and in the fall served as line football coach at Kenyon College, Gambier, O.

But 1925 found Mr. Hamilton back at Ohio State as inventory supervisor in charge of equipment. In his spare time he studied law and was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1928.

After three years in the business office of the university, he was appointed Executive Secretary of the College of Arts and Sciences, holding that position until coming to the Navy early this year. He also served as instructor in political science since 1932, and was rated as an associate professor at the time of his departure.

Upon reporting to the Navy in Washington, Mr. Hamilton was designated to perform liaison duties between the Pre-Flight organization and the universities where the Pre-Flight Schools were to be located. His insight into the operations of academic institutions, gained at O. S. U., served well in the formative days of the program.

He was sent on a survey trip with Comdr. Kessing and Comdr. Webb to each of the Pre-Flight Schools for the purpose of foreseeing the varied problems bound to arise when a Pre-Flight unit is superimposed on the campus of a peacetime university. The present curricula followed by the Pre-Flight Schools reflect in some measure his valuable experiences accrued at O. S. U., for he assisted in outlining the courses taught. In particular, the Nomenclature and recognition course was established under his suggestion and guidance. His influence was further impressed on the academic phase of Pre-Flight training when he interviewed and assisted in the selection of the civilians hired as instructors of the mathematics and physics course for the four Pre-Flight schools.

Among the casualties of the war is Mr. Hamilton's unusual hobby dating back to 1925—that of handling football crowds at Ohio State football games, no small task when it is realized that such crowds have averaged better than 60,000 for each of the Buckeyes' home games during the past five years.

The current generation of the Hamilton family into which our academic coordinator was born 39 years ago is establishing a rare service record during the present war, for all five brothers are serving as officers in the United States Army or Navy.

The other four, ranked from oldest to youngest, are:

Lt. Col. John L. Hamilton, of the 11th Replacement Battalion, Lt. Lewis, Wash.;

Lt. Comdr. Donald G. Hamilton, Supply Corps, Boston Navy Yard;

Lieut. Robert S. Hamilton, officer in charge of the Navy Recognition School at Columbus, O., and Comdr. Thomas J. Hamilton, director of the naval aviation physical fitness program in Washington.

Lieut. Howard Hamilton is next to the youngest in age.
