

Cadets to See Carolina, Duquesne Clash Here Today

By WESTY FENHAGEN
DTH Sports Editor

Two undefeated records will be at stake as the undefeated Carolina Tar Heels go up against a powerful Duquesne eleven in Kenan Stadium this afternoon in an inter-sectional contest that will be one of the nation's top gridiron offerings of the day. Kick-off will be at 2:30 and the entire cadet regiment will again be the guests of the University at the game.

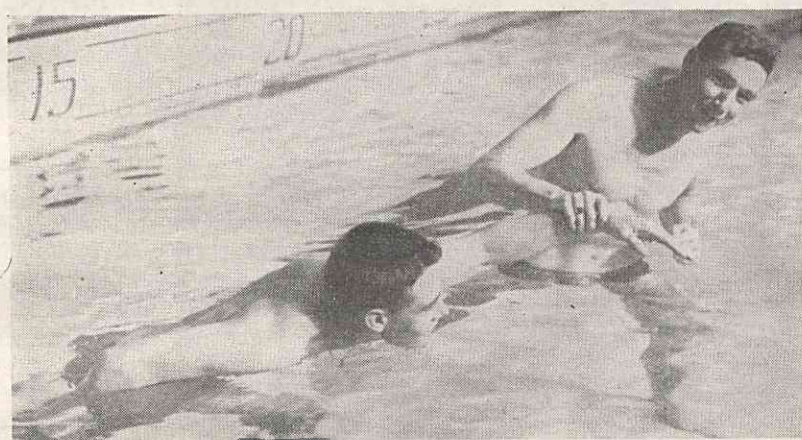

The mighty Iron Dukes who were added to the schedule only last Tuesday night to fill the spot vacated by the forced cancellation of the Rice contest will bring an eleven currently ranked 13th in the country to Chapel Hill, a team which is undefeated, untied, and unscored upon in three games this season. Coached by Buff Donelli, the Dukes have smashed out triumphs over Waynesburg, Holy Cross, and Kansas State thus far. They are undefeated in 18 consecutive games and have lost only twice in their last 25 engagements. Last season in their perfect season the Dukes were ranked sixth in the country.

The Tar Heels on the other hand have chalked up triumphs over Wake Forest and South Carolina, and battled Fordham to a scoreless deadlock last week, but will probably be the underdog in today's game.

Donelli has a host of stars who will see action this afternoon. The starting Duquesne line will average 206 pounds while the backfield corps will average 190. Heading the linemen will be All-American candidate John Matisi, a senior tackle, and his running mate, 225-pound Joe Cibulas is one of the best tackles Donelli has ever coached. Running in a modified Notre Dame formation will be an all veteran backfield unit composed of Joe Setcavage, Joe Goode, Joe Gottlieb, and Max Kielbasa, a quartet that has sparkled in the Dukes' three games so far this year.

Former 'Sink-Easy' Teaches Swimming

FROM NON-SWIMMER to swimming instructor in eight weeks is the uncommon accomplishment of Francis H. Markey, naval aviation cadet from Swampscott, Mass., shown above (on the right) teaching a fellow cadet how to get along in water without a boat or lifebelt.

Cadet Markey couldn't swim a stroke when he reported to the Pre-Flight School on July 9, and so was promptly assigned to Lieut. John Miller's "Submarine Squad" along with 52 other spluttering, splashing "sink-easies." He not only learned rapidly, but well, and soon passed the grueling tests required of all cadets. After swimming 100 laps one day—equivalent to a mile—he was appointed by Coach Miller as a cadet swimming instructor, and he already has taught a number of future Navy pilots how to stay off the bottom.

"From beginner to instructor in eight weeks is some jump," says Coach Miller, "and if Cadet Markey shows the same progress in flying that he has in swimming, he is headed for big things in the air."

Helldivers Regain Top Position From Catalinas

By CADET H. WESLEY BOGLE

The Helldivers returned to their winning ways last week to regain first place from the Catalinas and thereby earn the liberty award for Saturday, Oct. 10.

They gained 4½ points during the week to run their total to 15 while the Catalinas garnered only 2½ points for a grand total of 14½.

The Buffaloes and Coronados ended the week in a tie for third place with 13½ points each.

Swimming was resumed as a squadron sport last week with the Coronados, Buffaloes, Kingfishers, Devastators, Vindicators, and Mustangs all turning in victories.

In boxing the Helldivers and Buffaloes continued to pace the field with four triumphs in as many starts.

The Coronados held undisputed possession in football competition as the only undefeated and untied eleven with a record of two wins.

In soccer a four way tie existed for first place among the Catalinas, Wildcats, Devastators, and Helldivers. The latter club had a record of five wins, one loss, and two ties while the others had won six while dropping two.

In military track, the Coronados continued in first with four victories in as many starts.

The standings as of October 10:

Squadron	W	L	T	Pts.
Helldiver	14	5	2	15
Catalina	14	6	1	14½
Coronado	13	7	1	13½
Buffalo	12	6	3	13½
Mariner	8	10	3	9½
Skyrocket	8	10	3	9½
Wildcat	9	12	0	9
Buccaneer	8	11	2	9
Kingfisher	8	11	2	9
Devastator	8	12	1	8½
Vindicator	8	13	0	8
Mustang	6	13	2	7

Pre-Flighters Undefeated

The Irish of Notre Dame and the undefeated Eagles of Boston College this week block the paths of two of the four undefeated Navy Pre-Flight School football teams. Iowa Navy, victors over Kansas, Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan, meets Notre Dame at South Bend today while the Cloudbusters take on Boston College at Boston.

The Cloudbusters have downed Catawba College, Harvard and North Carolina State and played the Georgia Navy to a 14-14 tie. The Georgians have whipped Pennsylvania and Duke and meet the Pensacola Navy today at Pensacola, Fla.

The fourth Pre-Flight School, at St. Mary's College, Calif., which has defeated College of the Pacific, Oregon, U. C. L. A. and Alameda Coast Guard has an open date.

'Busters Seek Fourth Win Today Against Boston College

By LT. (JG) DAN PARTNER

Two unbeaten football teams—the Cloudbusters from the Carolina Pre-Flight School, and the Eagles of Boston College—clash in Fenway Park, Boston, Mass., this afternoon and a crowd of 25,000 is expected to be on hand to view the action.

With the fall of Fordham (defeated by Tennessee) and Penn (defeated by the Georgia Navy), the Eagles rank alone as the top team in the East and are expected to provide the stiffest competition this season for the Navy squad that has downed Catawba College, Harvard, North Carolina State and tied the Georgia Navy.

Boston College, tutored by Denny Myers, ran over tough West Virginia University in the opener and then overcame Clemson last week to remain in the select class of undefeated teams in the nation. The Eagles will out-weigh the Pre-Flighters both in the line and in the backfield today but aren't expected to possess the speed and versatility Lieut. Comdr. Jim Crowley's Cloudbusters will display.

The game is regarded as a toss-up. The breaks of the battle may decide the winner and a tie is well within the realm of possibility. Three times in years past, Crowley has fielded teams against the Eagles—and three times his charges have come out on the long end of the score. In 1933 at New York, Crowley's Fordham Rams won going away, 33 to 7 and repeated the next year here, 6 to 0. The 1935 clash, again at New York, resulted in another Fordham victory, this time by a 20 to 0 count.

Sparking the Cloudbuster attack today will be two former B. C. stars—Gene Goodreault and Joe Zabilski, both of whom were important members of the 1940 aggregation that went to the Sugar Bowl. Goodreault, who will start at right end, and Zabilski, the starting left guard, will be co-captains today.

The remainder of the tentative starting lineup includes Steve Hudacek and Joe Frank at the tackles; John Witkowski at left end; Charles Pierce at right guard; Joe Kovach, center; Bill

Krywicky, quarterback; Walter Zwiezynski and Mort Landsberg, halfbacks; and Joe Martin, fullback.

Zwiezynski, former star at Lafayette College, is the team's leading scorer, having tallied twice last Saturday night in the 19 to 7 victory over North Carolina State and once in the 14-14 tie with the Georgia Skyrockers. He also has kicked three extra points. Halfback Len Eshmont and End John Witkowski both have racked up two touchdowns, Quarterback Gene Davis has scored one, and End Hayward Sanford has kicked a pair of extra points.

The Cloudbusters found North Carolina State cocked and primed for last Saturday's game under the lights at Raleigh and trailed at the halftime intermission, 6 to 7. Navy tallied first, on the ninth play of the game when Zwiezynski skirted his own left end into pay dirt. The kick for the extra point was blocked, and the teams left the field with the 7 to 6 count on the scoreboard after the Wolfpack pushed to a score in the second period and booted the conversion.

Two long passes, with Witkowski as the brilliant receiver, set up the second touchdown and scored the third, as the Cloudbusters kept their slate free from the blot of defeat.

Next Friday night the Cloudbusters appear in Philadelphia against the Temple Owls. The remainder of the schedule follows: Oct. 31—Syracuse at Syracuse, N. Y.; Nov. 7—Georgetown at Washington, D. C.; Nov. 14—Manhattan at New York; Nov. 21—William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va.; Nov. 28—Fordham at New York; Dec. 5—Colgate at Chapel Hill, N. C.; Dec. 12—Iowa Navy at Chapel Hill, N. C.

Varsity Basketball Practice Underway

Although football is dominating the varsity sports scene and will continue to do so for nearly another two months, varsity basketball practice is being held every weekday afternoon, except Wednesday, in Woollen Gymnasium under the direction of Lt. (Jg) R. A. Raese, head coach of the court game.

Cadets from the tenth and succeeding battalions are invited to compete for positions on the team which will open its season in mid-December, long after most of the present regiment have departed for flight training.
