

Cloudbuster Quintet Shows Much Promise

Helldivers Capture Fall Sports Crown; Mariners Are Second

Outstanding in soccer, gym and swimming, the Helldivers, directed by Lt. (jg) E. Masavage and Lt. (jg) G. Ford, won the fall sports program which ended yesterday. Runnerups were the Mariners, Coronadoes, Buccaneers, Buffalos, and Catalinas.

Not until Tuesday did the Helldivers cinch first place. On that date they defeated the Mariners, who are in second place, in soccer. Not including this week's contests the Helldivers won one and lost two in wrestling, won three and lost one in swimming, won 13, lost six, and tied three in soccer, won four, lost four, and tied one in football, won one and lost none in gym, and won nine and lost one in boxing.

Starting Monday the winter sports program will get underway. Football has been dropped, and squads are now being formed in track and basketball. There is also a chance that a form of pushball and volleyball will be added.

Awards for the winter program will change from week to week. The squadron with the best record for the week will win the award the first week, the squadron leading in points will win the second week award, and the league leading team in each sport will win the third week award. Throughout the remainder of the winter program the awards will alternate until the season ends on Feb. 27.

Season Will Open With Appalachian Here on Dec. 16

"We haven't had much time to practice, but we expect to be in fairly good shape for our opening game with Appalachian here on Dec. 16," said Lt. (jg) Dyke Raese, head basketball mentor, yesterday.

And with that statement came word that although the squad was small those who composed it were former college stars who could be counted on to give the Cloudbusters a smooth working quintet come winter and basketball.

Heading the list of those who will star on the Woollen gym hardwood this winter are such stars as Gus Broberg, ex-Dartmouth star and captain; John Masterson of Syracuse; John Barr, All-American basketball player from Penn State; Forest Kendall, ex-Davis Elkins college star; Kenneth Hashagen, University of Pennsylvania; Howard Clifton McWilliams, Jr., also of Penn State; John Kraft of St. Joseph's, and Bernard Schiffer of CCNY.

At this writing Broberg and Masterson have the inside track on the forward positions, Barr looks best at the center spot, and Hashagen and Kendall are running in the guard slots on the number one team.

Coach Raese, whose West Virginia team last year won the New York sports writers' invitational tournament in Madison Square Garden, will use a deceptive, fast cutting offense, depending largely upon tricky passes to set up scoring plays. A combination zone and man to man will be used on defense.

Broberg and Barr are perhaps the two most famous players on the squad.
