HAMILTON

ilton was designated to perform liaison duties between the Pre-Flight organization and the universities where the Pre-Flight Schools were to be located. He was sent on a survey trip with Captain O. O. Kessing, USN, and Captain V. C. Webb, USNR, to each of the Pre-Flight Schools for the purpose of foreseeing the varied problems bound to arise when a Pre-Flight school should be superimposed on the campus of a peacetime university. The present curriculum followed by the Pre-Flight Schools reflects in some measure his valuable experiences at Ohio State, for he assisted in outlining several of the courses taught.

Today, for example, men of the United States Navy all over the world can identify enemy craft in a split second out of the corner of the eye as a result of a recognition system developed originally for the Pre-Flight program.

The new method, which is essentially a system of muscular eye training to teach men to know a total object after only a flash view, was planned for the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight program by Lieut. Comdr. Hamilton. The detailed techniques were worked out in cooperation with Lieut. Comdr. Hamilton by Dr. Samuel R. Renshaw, professor of experimental psychology at Ohio State.

Lieut. Comdr. Hamilton is a graduate of Ohio State, class of 1924. During his first year following graduation he worked on a real estate indexing project in Columbus, O., and in the fall served as line football coach at Kenyon College, Gambier, O. In 1925 he returned to Ohio State and was attached to the staff of the business department of the university. In his spare time he studied law and was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1928. Also, he served as freshman line coach in football.

After three years in the business office of the University, he was appointed Executive Secretary of the College of Arts and Sciences, holding that position until coming into the Navy.

Lieut. Comdr. Hamilton married a college classmate in 1928. He and Mrs. Hamilton have four children: Ardis Mary, 15; Richard North, 12, and Barbara and Betty, twins, aged 9.

the targets are too small. However, we heard from a highly confidential source that the real reason was due to failure on our part to line up those sights and SQUEEZE.

After receiving our sad and glad news, we then had the opportunity of watching Sgt. Boyd dismantle and put together a Browning machine gun, Cal. .30. Then, since we had been attentive if nothing else, he let us each fire a few bursts with the murderous thing. Although we weren't shooting at a target, those of us watching the clay bank crumble to pieces before our eyes have gained a new respect for our buddies who are sent out to silence them on the battlefronts. After that we all watched Sgt. Cruz demonstrate the various positions used in firing a rifle and then proceeded to use each position and fire five rounds from the same.

Next year we can all go out and shoot again, but the majority of us will be in places where qualification is a must and nothing less than expert will give us another chance. So, in closing out this description of one of the grandest experiences I've ever had, I want to thank Warrant Officer Wirkus, Marine Sgts. Cruz, Boyd, Spanos, Buckeley, Reese, and Both for myself and on behalf of my classmates for the attention, instruction, and help you've given us all. Someday we'll teach you how to swab decks, EXPERTLY!

After winning two straight games in Ration League competition over the past week, the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight Cloudbusters will tackle Camp Butner here this afternoon at 1500.

Last Saturday's victory over Carolina came as the biggest surprise of the week and established the Cloudbusters as a definite threat for the Ration League crown. The Tar Heels were favored to win. They undergraduate work at Ohio State, class of 1928, and received his Master's from the University of California in 1930.

Returning to Ohio State in 1930, he served one year as an instructor and also completed work for his Ph.D. in comparative psychology. At the time he was commissioned in the Navy he was Head of the Department of Psychology and Philosophy at the University of Wyoming, a position he held from 1933 to 1942.

Replacing Lieut. Bruce as head of ENS, is Lieut. R. Eugene Curry, USNR. He has been in charge of Academic Records, and has also served as an instructor in the ENS department.

Lieut. Henry M. Brabham, USNR, an instructor in ENS, is the new Academic Records officer. He did his undergraduate work at Furman University, and received his Master's from the University of Virginia.

had defeated N. C. State, 24 to 1, in their other Ration League start.

The Cloudbusters, however, thought otherwise, and the score was 6 to 1 in favor of the future Navy fliers.

Cadet J. A. Farley handled the pitching duties for the Pre-Flighters. He allowed but five hits, and would have had a shutout except for Hoey's triple in the second inning.

Four runs in the third inning iced the game for the Navy nine. Falk was the Pre-Flight's big gun with a home run and double to account for most of the Navy scoring.

The N. C. State game, which the Pre-Flighters won 8 to 4, caused the winners more trouble than the score indicates. State scored four runs in the second inning on singles by Lamb, Baker and Page. Pre-Flight first scored in the fifth on Barnes' single and two long outfield flies which allowed runners on third to tag up and score.

The margin of victory was provided by outfielder Jim Crampsey with an assist by Coach Glenn Killinger. Coach Killinger sent Crampsey into right field in the fifth inning to replace Newman, and the latter came through with a long triple to leftfield in the seventh that sent home both the tying and winning runs.

Siegner started on the mound for the Cloudbusters but gave way to Burkewitz at the start of the fourth. The latter pitched one inning before giving way to Somerville who finished up to receive credit for the victory. Page was State's losing pitcher. He gave up but six hits before being relieved by Edwards in the seventh. However, he was constantly in trouble allowing six bases on balls.

Wilson, with a triple and single, paced the losers at the plate. Barnes was best for the Cloudbusters, with two for four.
