

BETTER THAN A GROUND POWER UNIT — With stewardess Cynthia Hansbrough as an accessory, the 737 engines will probably not need a power unit at all.

A POOL AT INT? — Not quite a swimming pool but the "hole" being readied for the Boeing 737 Flight Simulator at this stage looks a lot like it. The simulator for pilot training is scheduled for installation in October this year. Located inside what was the brick warehouse behind the maintenance hangar at INT, the simulator quarters will also house F-H 227 Procedural Trainer which should be ready by April 1st.
