Who's on first?

has served as station manager at PKB (Parkersburg, WV) for two years and FLO (Florence, SC) for seven years.

Tom Rogers, Don O'Neal, and Ted Farrington have been named station managers at Piedmont's newest destinations — AGS, CLE, and CMI — where service begins April 24.

Rogers, new station manager at AGS, has most recently been customer service manager at PHL. He began his career in 1968 at GSP and has also worked at ATL, CLT, and FAY. O'Neal, new station manager at CLE, also joined Piedmont in 1968. He worked at ORF until 1980 when he became customer service manager at RDU. Farrington joined the company in 1955 in BLF (Bluefield, WV) where he became station manager in 1968. When Piedmont left BLF in 1980, he moved to CRW as a supervisor. He will be in charge of Piedmont's operations at CMI.

supervisor-ground operations, INT; (second row) Captain J. Y. Spencer, INT; Sky Day, manager-station training, INT; and Bill Lam, superintendent-line maintenance, INT.

Looking good at DTW

The timing was right.

With the auto industry on the rebound and the economy beginning to pick up, Piedmont began service to Detroit, the fifth largest metropolitan area in the country. And the market has responded enthusiastically.

"Boardings on our two daily non-stop flights to Charlotte have done exceptionally well," said Don Turner, DTW station manager. "In March, the first full month of operation, we boarded over 5,000 passengers, and we feel DTW's going to be a good market for Piedmont."

Many people picture Detroit as cold and impersonal because of its size and the fact that it is very industrial. But Turner has been pleasantly surprised.

"Detroit is large and is very industrial, but we've found the area a very good place to live. People are friendly and helpful and the State of Michigan is beautiful," he said.

"We have a good terminal here and American, which handles our operations, has been very good to work with," he added.

Piedmont began service to Detroit February 15. Nine employees — six fulltime and three part-time — work at the new station.

Discover America on Piedmont! If you're planning a vacation soon let Piedmont be your connection to an exciting holiday in Chattanooga.

Chattanooga was settled about 1815 by Chief John Ross, a descendant of the native Cherokee Indians, at a ferry crossing known as Ross' Landing. In 1838, the name was changed to Chattanooga, the Cherokee word for "rock coming to a point," because of Lookout Mountain. Around the turn of the century, an enterprising group was the first to bottle a fountain drink called Coca-Cola. In the 1930's, the Chattanooga valley became a power and flood control center for seven states under the Tennessee Valley Authority.
