"In this trading area," he said, "old people are dying and a new generation is going on. The merchants who want to keep in touch with the new crop of customers to counter-balance the loss of the old crop must have never let up in his advertising.

They Smite The Hand That Feeds Them

The human memory is sometimes fleeting and indeed who is there among us that does not remember the effects of the great depression that was upon this country from 1929 to 1933? Two-thirds of the high school children in Rocky Mount were underfed, undernourished and the percentage in the grammar grades was higher and condition that existed in Rocky Mount was practically the same throughout the country. The sad condition is indescribable.

Hungry children crying to destitute fathers for bread. The fathers unable to listen to the cries of their hungry children sought flight through suicide. In fact, we had an epidemic of suicides throughout the country.

The American people ceased to be laughing and smiling people. They carried heavy facs and sad countenances.

When Mr. Roosevelt took the oath of office the above was a true condition. Mr. Roosevelt was the first President of the United States that gave his first concern to help the farmers and try to improve living conditions of labor. He realized that there could be no permanent recovery, unless the agricultural conditions were improved. Agriculture has been improved. The living standards of labor have been bettered and what has come to the farmer and labor has benefited industry and business.

The dividends of the great corporations, many of them the greatest in the history of the nation. No longer ago than yesterday it was published throughout the nation by the General Motors Corporation that they had earned the greatest dividend in the history of the corporation.

Yet many of the major stockholders are crying out Mr.

Roosevelt and the Democratic leadership in Congress are ruining the country.

The naked have been clothed, the hungry have been filled and the great stockholders of th great corporations have received their dividends so that they can have their accustomed luxuries which they did not receive during the depression. Yet they cry out against the hand that has made all of this possible.

ROCKY MOUNT LOSES LEADING CITIZEN

In the passing of Thomas Battle, Rocky Mount has lost one of its finest citizens and one that the citizenship of Rocy Mount mourns with his family in their loss.

Mr. Battle was a man of many labors and many interests. He was the leader of his church in Rocky Mount. He was one of the most successful business leaders and besides this, was one of our best and most public spirited leaders in the development of the city of Rocky Mount.

He took the lead in the muncipal ownership of our pub lic utilities-water, lights, and gas; always progressive but his progressiveness was always hedged about by good business conservatism.

The present splendid economic condition of our town is due to the primary work of such men as Mr. Battle, P. C Vestal, R. R. Gay, W. D. Joyner and others who gave largely in time in the early development of our town.

Mr. Battle was a fine example to the citizenship of our community. The elegance and simplicity of his character made him a fine example, both to those who had more of this world's goods than he had, also to those who had less

It's Probably Greatest Legalized Steal In American History Secretary Says

Washington, Jan. 28 .- Contending "this is probably the greatest le-galized steal in American history," Secretary Wallace today renewed his attack on the supreme court's decision refunding $200,000,000 to processors.

Wallace in a radio address over a wallace in a radio address over a national network, cited profit figures of various processors to show the large returns they would obtain. "In the Hoosac mills case," Wallace said, "the supreme court disapproved the idea that the government could take money from one group for the benefit of another. Yet in could take money from one group for the benefit of another. Yet in for the benefit of another. Yet in turning over to the processors this $200,000,000 which came from all the people we are seeing the most flagrant example of expropriation for the benefit of one small group. This is probably the greatest legalized steal in American history.

"You will get some idea of its size when you contrast these refunds with the profits of the processors in their most prosperous years. Cotton mills reported profits of $30,000,000 in 1929; their processing tax refunds amount to $51,000,000 on cotton. Flour mills reported profits of ton. Flour mills reported profits of about $20,000,000 on their wheat flour business in 1929; their processing tax refunds amount to $67,000,-

"Packers' profits on their hog business in 1929 were in the neighborhood of $20,000,000; their tax refunds are $51,000,000. One of the largest packers had total profits of $14,000,000 last year. If half of htis came from the firm's hog business, as is likely, that profit, $7,000,000 is only about half the $13,000,000 processing tax refunds to the one correction."

PROBLEMS AT WASHINGTON

By Hugo Sims, Special Washington Correspondent

The Supreme Court is now in the midst of a two weeks recess and there will be no decision on the Tennessee Valley Authority before it reconvenes the first week in February. While many expected the decision to be handed down last week, the Court resseed on none of the cross cision to be handed down hast wees, the Court passed on none of the gov-ernment's cases last week, althouga the request of the government for a re-hearing on the decision upserting the processing taxes was re-fused with rare speed for the Court, which immediately ordered the re-lease of the funds impounded. An argument on the suit of the State of Georgia, challenging the constitution-ality of the Bankhead Cotton Con-trol Act, will be heard on February 4th.

The T. V. A. case is of outstanding importance. It is the last of the New Deal issues now awaiting the Court's ruling. The real fifth is whether the government shall be allowed to compete in the hydro-electric field against private enter-prise. On the decision of the Court will rest, to a large degree, the vast economic and social experiment now being conducted in the Tennessee river basin.

The decision of the Court is like-ly to create an outstanding issue in the coming national campaign. Forces on both sides are organizing for the fight, which will probably be waged in every Congressional district. The T. V. A. case involves the effort of stock-holders of the Alabama Power Company to prevent the sale of transmission lines to tho T. V. A. The government, beaten in the trial court, won in the Court of Appeals.

President Roosevelt is wholeheartedly behind the plan to use the half forgotten Soil Conservation Act of of 1935 which will be amended to make clear that farmers are to be rewarded for maintaining "soil fertility" as distinguished from the prevention of "soil erosion." The measure, as amended, is expected to be a satisfactory substitute for the defunct AAA and to maintain the policy of Congress to provide farm income that measures up to that of industrial workers. The President thinks it will carry out the program he laid down last October for a "more permanent plan" to maintain and increase the gains made by agriculture and to broaden constitution. President Roosevelt is wholeheartshich ownstity of Goldsboro Rocky Mount this week its that drug store at 178 North Main Street, next door to the Cameo Theatre.

The active management will be in charge of Chester Moore, formally of Asheville, who is associated with Mr. Andrews in this drug store here in Rocky Mount.

of the dangers of over-usage of soil, coupled with the inference that good land could be taken from production temporarily on the ground of conservation, for the reason that soil should lie idle periodically, indicates that there will be no lack of crop control. The President called attention to "intangible" erosion, which consists of using up the chemicals necessary to keep soil productive.

He stressed sentences in his statement of October 25th, emphasizing the possibility that it might be as important to stimulate certain kinds of production as it has been to re-move burdensome surpluses. At that time he insisted that the "long-time and more permanent adjustment pro-gram" would provide positive incen-tives for soil conservation and that benefit payments could be made on a basis to encourage individual far-mers to adopt sound farm manage-ment, crop rotation, and soil-conser-vation methods.

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, meeting last week at Miami, Florida, considered the instruction of the last Labor Convention to formulate an amendment to the Federal Constitution empowering Congress to en-act labor and social and welfare legislation. Undoubtedly, Labor as a whole desires such an amendment, although somewhat afraid of giving the government greater power in dealing with Labor, fearing that this might curtail the right to strike.

A report at the convention was that the Democrats will not adopt any plank calling for such an amendment. Labor leaders who favor
