HIGHLIGHTS OF ROOSEVELT MANTEO TALK

Fort Raleigh, Roanoke Island, Aug. 18, highlights of President Roosevelt's speech commemorating the birth of Virginia Dare follows:
I fear very much that if certain modern Americans, who protest loudly their devotion to American ideals, were suddenly to be given a comprehensive view of the earliest American colonists and their methods of life and government, they would promptly label them "Socialists."

In the half century that followed (Jefferson's administration) there was constant war between those who, like Andrew Jackson, believed in a democracy conducted by and for a complete cross-section of the population, and those who, like the directors of the Banks of the United States and their friends in the United States Senate, believed in the conduct of government by a self-perpetuating group at the top of the ladder.

They (American Lord Macaulay) tell you that America drifts toward the Scylla of dictatorship on the one hand, or the Charybdis of anarchy on the other. Their anchor for the salvation of the ship of state is Macaulay's anchor. Supreme power—in the hands of a class, numerous indeed, but select.

Mine is a different anchor. They do not believe in democracy. I do. My anchor is democracy—and more democracy. . . I am firm in my belief that the nation, by an overwhelming majority, supports my opposition to the vesting of supreme power in the hands of any class, numerous but select.

I conceive it to be true that I am just as strongly in favor of the security of property and the maintenance of order as the American Lord Macaulay who thunder today. And in this the American people are with me too. But we cannot go along with the Tory insistence that salvation lies in the vesting of power in the hands of a select class.

Macaulay condemned the American scheme of government based on popular majority. In this country eighty years later his successors do not yet dare openly to condemn the American form of government by popular majority, for they profess adherence to the form while at the same time their every act shows opposition to the very fundamentals of democracy.

They (the American Lord Macaulay) love to intone phrases of liberty, to mouth phrases about the sanctity of our Constitution—but in their hearts they distrust majority rule because an enlightened majority will not tolerate abuses which a privileged minority would seek to foist upon the people as a whole.

They seek to substitute their own for that of the majority for they would serve their own interest above the general welfare.

Under Democratic government, the

Trained Doctors Needed For Public Health Work, Said

There are vacancies which could be filled with trained men, if these were available, it was announced here today by Dr. Carl Reynolds, State Health Officer, who said: "We would like to contact doctors under thirty-five years of age of outstanding personality and professional fitness who would like to take up public health work as a specialty and not as a stepping-stone to curative medicine."

By this, he said, he meant young physicians who wished to make this form of service their life's work. He added that he had appealed to the medical profession, asking its cooperation in this important matter and calling attention to the fact that two special courses are now given at Chapel Hill each year for the training of public health specialists, the next course to begin September 20.

Right Kind Of Health Officer

"The right kind of health officer," Dr. Reynolds pointed out, "can be of incalculable help to his fellow physicians who are in the private practice of medicine, and in general instruction, overcoming misconceptions, taboos and prejudices, and warning against self-medication, the use of patent medicines, counter practicing and patronizing or following the advice of faddists or cultists. "He can render service in teaching the recognition of danger signals that indicate the need for action," Dr. Reynolds continued, "immediate care by the family physician in urging a regular physical check-up by this family physician for the early diagnosis and treatment of disease in its non-symptomatic stages."

VACCINATION OF DOGS URGED BY VETERINARIAN

Dr. L. H. Hicks and his assistants vaccinated 108 dogs in Nashville on Saturday, August 14. All dogs were supposed to have been vaccinated by July 1 but in as much as there was some confusion about the dates, August 14 was set as the last date on which dogs could be vaccinated.

However, due to the fact that such a large number of persons brought dogs to be vaccinated, Dr. Hicks agreed to be in Nashville again Saturday, August 21, from 1 to 6 P. M. to vaccinate all dogs which are brought. This vaccination cost 50c and Dr. Hicks will issue a slip which when presented at the time when your tax is paid you will be given credit for 50c on your tax. Therefore, the vaccination will not cost anything whatsoever.

After Saturday, August 21, the sheriff will call upon the people who did not have their dogs vaccinated and they will be prosecuted.

poorest are no longer necessarily the most ignorant part of society.

I seek no change in the American form of government. Majority rule must be preserved as the safeguard of both liberty and civilization. Under it property can be secure; under it abuses can end; under it order can be maintained.

P. M. GENERAL VISITOR HERE

Postmaster General Interested In Air Mail Service For Rocky Mount Soon

"I should be very glad to see Rocky Mount's airport facilities enlarged and air mail service inaugurated as soon as these can be arranged," said Postmaster General James J. Farley to a group of citizens who welcomed him in a brief stop in the City Tuesday night. "This is an excellent center," he said, "and I am for anything that will promote your interests."

The cabinet officer paused briefly here en route to Elizabeth City, where he spent the night, before going on today to Manteo to join the President who spoke there Wednesday. He had been to Fayetteville for an address before the state convention of postmasters. In company with him was Ambrose O'Connell, executive assistant to the Postmaster General. A representative number of local dignitaries greeted the distinguished guest, all of whom he greeted warmly.

One of those present asked Mr. Farley how it was that in view of the pressure of official business incident to the approaching adjournment of Congress and the difficulties of the Oriental situation, the President could spare the time to leave Washington now. "Is it because he has a speech he wants to deliver?"

"Mr. Roosevelt is coming because some months ago he promised Lindsay Warren he would come. It never would do to disappoint so fine a man as Lindsay Warren on an occasion that means so much to him and to his people. And that is also the reason I am here," was the reply the General gave.

Pleasantries were exchanged by the General, Mr. O'Connell, and local citizens who had gathered for the welcome. Arthur C. Davis, Rocky Mount's personification of the cartoon character "Uncle Sam," invited the general to take part in one of the parades he so often leads. "Then," winked Mr. Davis, "folks can't tell whether I am working for you or you are working for me." Mr. Farley smiled in enjoyment of the jest.

Insurance Agency Is Moved Here

W. S. Wilkinson, Inc., a general insurance agency here of which George A. Wilkinson is president, is settling its headquarters in a new office on Sunset Avenue at the Howard street intersection.

The company has been operating in the city for many years and was formerly located in the building of the Winkinson-Bulluck real estate and insurance agency, although the two companies have no connection.

Tom E. Jolley is vice president and treasurer of the company, which was named for the late W. S. Wilkinson, Sr., and bears his name. Miss Mary Astor Lewis is secretary.

"The Dependable Market"

Rocky Mount is in complete readiness for the opening of the Tobacco Market on August 26, 1937, fully prepared to take care of the large amount of tobacco that is expected on the Rocky Mount market this season. Ten big warehouses, well-manned by highly trained managers and assistants, are ready for the opening. Rocky Mount has enough floor space to insure to those who sell in Rocky Mount that they will not encounter delays and blocked sales. The market in Rocky Mount has had a steady and continuous growth—dependable in all seasons and all the years.

THE PRESIDENT AT MANTEO

North Carolina had the high honor this week of having the President of the United States take part in commemorating the birth of Virginia Dare at Manteo. No more appropriate place could have been found in this nation than Roanoke Island for the President of the United States to deliver his great address on democracy.

The President understands better than anyone else that the United States has within its borders a large class that do not believe in real democracy or the rule of the people. While they express great devotion to democracy and their love for the Constitution, yet in their own hearts there is a deep-seated feeling that the ruling powers should be from a select educated, wealthy class. Such a class as Lord Macaulay, the English Historian spoke of in his letter to his friend in this country. Macaulay did not believe the people should rule and he did not believe in majority rule. He believed in this select class with government handed down by heredity. This group that expressed such a devotion to the Constitution and to Mr. Jefferson was the same that condemned Mr. Jefferson when he lived for his liberal views. Sometime ago during the last presidential campaign, we read a letter condemning the administration of the President, indeed a vicious letter, and we thought it was a letter against Mr. Roosevelt and were offended at its mean and cruel expressions. At the bottom of the letter there was a statement in which it explained that this letter was written about the last term of President George Washington. This same group professing devotion to the Constitution criticizing the liberal views of President George Washington.

The speech of the President was great and was delivered at a time when it was needed in this world—today.

Lieutenant T. B. Wood from the Army flying field at Washington, D. C., was a visitor to the city airport Monday. Visitors have been numerous at the local airport during the past week, Manager Lee said, with many Navy and Army fliers dropping in for short visits.
