Furthermore, these 18 elections were held under the provisions of a statute prepared by the Wets themselves. By legalizing beer up to 24 per cent alcoholic content and permitting transportation of whiskey into Dry Counties, this statute impaired the effectiveness of prohibi-tion in all Counties and created a situation that the Wets thought would enable them t ocarry every County. But they lost in 10 of he 18 elections and they have not been able to set up liquor stores in any

Should Stay On Highway

We are carrying in our issue this week a statement from Honorable A. J. Maxwell, Commissioner of Revenue and Supervisor of the Highway Patrol relative to the sad deplorable number of deaths and traffic accidents upon our public highways in North Carolina. This is indeed a sad sad picture and we agree with him that it is a problem of major importance to be faced. We are glad that new instructions to the highway patrolmen has been prepared and that they will give more time to the supervision of the roads. The patrol has had to spend too much time collecting taxes for the state, they have had very little time to give to patroling the roads. We believe it may well, he said, that not more than 10 percent of thei rtime has been given to road supervision and we say this without any criticism of the prtrolmen for they have been required to be revenue collectors and license distributors rather than perform the duty which the legislation intended for them to assume. We are indeed glad that the Commissioner of Revenue has seen fit to order them to the roads and hope they will be relieved of the duty as tax collectors, so they may stay on the Highway.

MANY ANNUNCE FOR OFFICE

We notice from the press reports that there will be much activity in political circles for the various judicial offices throughout the state. We believe that it has been reported that there will be around 12 judical contests, this is a healthy sign. If we are to maintain any kind of democracy the people have got to take an interest in gov-ernment, and it is always a healthy sign when the peo-ple think enough of their offices to want them and are willing to enter into honorable contest for these offices. The trouble with the country today there has been so much centralization in government, so much central control, so much appointing, and the people have had so little part in all of it that it is indeed wholesome to see these candidates file for office and submit their cause to the judgment of the people. Every member of the Supreme Court got his job by appointment, except one and more than 80 percent of the Superior Court Judges have received their jobs by appointment rather than by election by the people.

Auditor's Office To Handle Treasur er's Work-Annual Audits Suggested

There will be no Nash county reasurer after the first of the month of December, 1938, Nash coun ty commissioners decided in their monthly meeting in Nashville. The commissioners abolished the office of county treasurer, effective at the expiration of the term of J.

T. Taylor the present treasurer. Abolishing the office of county treasurer had been considered by the commissioners for some time. Mod ern accounting and banking methods had made the office, which was once important, unnecessary, the board of commissioners concluded. The transactions handled by the county treasurer will be transferred to the county auditor's office when the treasurer's office is abolishd. The addition of one clerk in the auditor's office will be all that is necessary to effect the change, the mmissioners believe.

Abolishing the office of treasurer will save Nash County about $1,-800 a year, estimated R. R. Gay, chairman of the county commissioners.

Just completing its first audit in 10 years, Nash county should have annual audits, the commissionres agreed, and Chairman Gay suggested that the board expects to authorize audits annually in the future.

Cost Huge Sum

Thousands of dollars are lost annually in Nash County from cotton and tobacco diseases according to J. S. Sugg, County Farm Agent. Mr. Sugg stated that many farmers are taking advantage of the newer methods of disease control but the majority are following in the footsteps of their ancestors and are failing to get advantage of the control methods which have been discovered through scientific research of the experiment stations through. out the nation.

Editor's note: The following arti-ABOLISHED cle on highway deaths in North Carolina, pointing out that the death rate in this State more than doubles the average of the 10 best states, should make North Carolinians ask "What's wrong with us," said its author.

> I like to talk and write about North Carolina "firsts." Here is a North Carolina "worst" and one that is within our power to correct.

At least we are worse than 42 other states; slightly better than the seven worst states; a little more than twice as bad as the average of the 10 best states; and 25 per cent worse than the national average.

If I were trying to alibi I would raise the question as to whether the 10 states shown in white as "best" states have as complete a system of accident reports as we have. They probably do not. But there could not be a percentage of inaccuracy that would change the picture materially. At any rate that is the bad kind of national advertising the State is receiving. The map is put out and broadcast by the National Safety Council, covering records of the first 10 months of 1937.

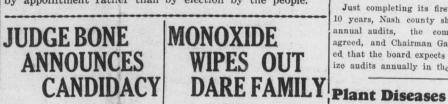

We do know that 1,123 human lives were snapped out on our highways in 1937, and 7,990 additional injuries running from temporary to permanent. We know that the property loss in itself was appalling.

What To Do About It?

What can you and I do about it? What ought you and I do about it? I admit that my responsibility is somewhat greater than the average citizen's.

The law has placed in my general supervision a highway patrol of 121 men, with full equipment for policing highways; a radio system to flash the news and head off reckless drivers, and a license law with power of revocation for proper cause. Still there has yet been no receptive diminution of fatal accidents, even when related to increasing vehicle registration and gaso line consumption.

Apparently our people are becom ing more and more mindful of this shameful record-this daily menace to the life of every citizen-as municipal organizations give more thought to traffic regulations; as local safety councils are organized; as chambers of commerce and civic clubs put on safety campaigns, and as safety training goes into the public schools, and is preached from pulpits.
