"RUN SILENT, RUN DEEP"

Two "giants" of the screen meet head-on for the first time when Clark Gable and Burt Lancaster are pitted against each other in "Run Silent, Run Deep," a hard-hitting story of World War II underseas warfare, which will play Monday, August 10, at the Galax Theatre.

The two are paired as a submarine commander and his executive--each with strong and violent emotions that erupt in the heat of combat.

Harold Hecht produced the film for Hecht-Hill-Lancaster and United Artists release. Robert Wise is the director.

The U.S. Navy, anxious to present the submarine service in an authentic manner, went all-out in cooperation. The U.S.S. Redfish, a fleet submarine with a brilliant World War II record, was detailed to the production and "plays" the "role" of the U.S.S. Nerka, the submarine of the screenplay.

The Navy cooperated in every phase of the planning, supplied a destroyer and other vessels for aid in filming, and even furnished a half-million dollars worth of equipment to assure complete authenticity in the sets.
