WHITESIDE MOUNTAIN

With the opening in 1950 of a motor road to the top of Whiteside Mountain (4,930 ft.) another of America's great mountain fastnesses was made accessible.

Generally recognized as the highest in Eastern America, the breath-taking cliffs of Whiteside have long been viewed with awe by native and visitors alike.

Your drive to the ample parking grounds near the summit of this noble mountain is comfortable, safe, and only in a matter of minutes. You may just sit in your car and look out on one of the most amazing panoramas of mountains, lakes, waterfalls, plains, forests, and highways to be seen anywhere. Or, if you wish, hike over the inviting trails that lead to every vantage point along the three-quarter mile crest, and explore the romantic reaches that have been the basis of much fascinating legend. You will have real opportunity to study flowers, trees, shrubs, towering cliffs, and thrilling rock formations.

Whiteside Mountain is open April 1 to December 1 and also on Sundays during the winter months when the weather permits.

TRANSYLVANIA MUSIC CAMP

The "after-dark symphony" at Transylvania Music Camp doesn't sound quite the same. Although the principals are still there, the accompaniment of 165 young musicians is gone.

Transylvania Music Camp at Brevard ended its 23rd season August 9, and, for this group of campers from 12 to 20 years of age, six weeks of study, performance and recreation were left behind in the dust of departing automobiles and busses.

At Transylvania Music Camp, the "symphony" goes on. However, the sassy "midget" waterfall at the entrance to the camp grounds seems a little less confident without the comforting murmur of young voices.
