"ROMANOFF AND JULIET"

When the General (Peter Ustinov) abstains in a critical United Nations vote, the Soviet and United States ambassadors pressure his Republic of Concordia to accept aid so that his vote may be influenced.

Anxious to keep his nation out of world headlines, since it is broke and cannot be found on the maps (two facts responsible for its peaceful history), the General, whose sole power in the world lies in love and laughter, fosters a romance between Igor Romanoff (John Gavin) and Juliet Moulsworth (Sandra Dee), daughter of the American ambassador.

When Juliet's American boy friend Freddie (Rik Von Nutter), comes to Concordia, his presence and the preceding cables are interpreted by the elder Romanoff and his spy (Carl Don) as the prelude to an invasion of Concordia. This sends both the U. S. and Soviet embassies into a frenzy of diplomatic activity which ends only when the General succeeds in getting Romanoff married to Juliet before either father can prevent it.

Finally, the Russian and American ambassadors, accepting the fact that they cannot beat love and laughter, join the celebration.

"Romanoff and Juliet" will open at the GALAX THEATRE on Wednesday, August 1.
