Nature--the blue of tranquil skies, the shimmer of winding streams, the wilderness of trees and shrubs and flowers, the dreamy haze half veiling a hundred other mountains with names and a thousand other nameless but just as beautiful, and like as many emerald terraces piled one above the other until the farthestmost stands in the dim and shadowy distance wrapped in the mantle of Heaven.

"The sun shines, the moon beams, the springs bubble, the cascades sparkle, the flowers bloom, the winds moan, the zephyrs whisper, the birds sing, and the heavens gleam in their imperial draperies of fleecy cloud and splendid light, just as they did when the Morning Star first saluted Creation's Dawn."
