NATURE STUDY CLASSES BEGIN JUNE 22ND AT MUSEUM

The Nature Study Classes, sponsored by the Highlands Biological Station, will begin the week of June 22. The following schedule will continue through August 24: Tuesday, 10:00-11:30, 6-8 age group; Wednesday, 10:00-12:00, 9-11 age group; Thursday, 10:00-12:00; 12-14 age group.

The 12 through 14 age group will be working on problems concerned with plant and animal identification, and will involve both field and laboratory work. Since this group is usually small, a limited number of interested adults may attend, but to receive the maximum benefit attendance should be regular throughout summer.

Children who attend the Highlands School will have free registration. Each member of the Highlands Biological Station will be allowed one free registration - child or adult. All others will be charged fifty cents per class or two dollars for the summer period.

Dr. Malvina Trussell, Counselor of Nature Study, has planned a sequential program and urges parents to see that their children attend each class period.
