"UP FROM THE BEACH"

The adventures of two American soldiers during the 36 hours following the D-Day landing form the thematic basis for "Up From The Beach," which plays at the GALAX THEATRE on Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug 31-Sept 1. Adapted from George Barr's novel, "Epitaph For An Enemy," the production stars Cliff Robertson and Red Buttons as American infantrymen who are assigned the task of leading 23 French civilians to safety from falling artillery shells.

Irina Demick co-stars as a member of the French resistance. Also starring are Slim Pickens as a colonel in the Artillery, Broderick Crawford as a gruff M. P. Major, James Robertson and Marius Goring.

The two American GI's find the events of the momentous day challenging their hearts and minds in startlingly unexpected ways. Trained as combat soldiers, taught to believe they would be welcomed as liberators and indoctrinated to hate Germans, they suddenly find themselves perplexed as they shuttle across the battlefield with the French civilians whom they are assigned to escort. For these men, D-Day proves to be the most meaningful of all.
