Henry Fonda, being tossed high into the air by a bucking bronco and biting the dust, you have an idea of the laughs and exciting action in store in this wonderfully entertaining modern-day western.

A sly and cynical brown-and-white roan named "Ol' Fooler" is the villain or the story. It is this ornery piece of horseflesh, addicted to whiskey mash, that dislodges the veteran cowpokes, Ford and Fonda, in the beginning of the film and continues to harass them throughout the wild and hilarious happenings dreamed up by Burt Kennedy who wrote the screen play and also directed, with Richard E. Lyons Producing.

The two horse wranglers, fed up with lonesome winters in the New Mexico hills, gathering stray cattle from the mountain range and gentling freshly-broken horses, dream of ease under the palms of a tropical island. But fate keeps them under the bondage of rancher Jim Ed Love, who no sooner pays them off after a season's work than manages to sign them on again after they have gone through their earnings via a few nights of high living in the town of Sedona.

"The Rounders" is an extra bonus to a movie which spells ENTERTAINMENT from opening reel to final fadeout.

"The Rounders" plays Saturday, July 30th, at the GALAX THEATRE.
