"IN HARM'S WAY"

Otto Preminger's largescale production "In Harm's Way", a Paramount Release playing at the GALAX THEATRE on Tuesday, August 2nd, is based on James Bassette's novel, already heralded as a sea-war story among the best of all time.

A robust drama of war and heroic tradition, it is also a penetrating drama of human beings; men and women caught up in a critical moment of history.

"In Harm's Way" probes the personal crises in the lives of a few who rose from the rubble of the Pearl Harbor disaster, and, facing impossible odds, launched a land and sea invasion against enemy strong-holds in the Pacific.

It also concerns one man charged with the responsibility of mounting this invasion, and the fate of the men and women under his command.

Filmed in the authentic backgrounds of the Hawaiian Islands, producer-director Preminger assembled perhaps the greatest all-star cast in Hollywood's history for the approximately 20 main character roles in the picture. Preminger also surrounded himself with a thoroughly experienced and skilled international staff of creative artists and technicians. Several of these were former U. S. Naval officers who saw action in the Pearl Harbor crisis.

In logistical terms, the film project was monumental. Virtually moving a complete motion picture studio from Hollywood to the Hawaiian Islands, Preminger transported more than 100 of a staff and technical crew, a cast of 50 and three boatloads of equipment, wardrobes, and supplies to Hawaii for "In Harm's Way".

Headlining the all-star cast which was flown to the island were John Wayne, Kirk Doughls, Patricia Neal, Tom Tryon, Paula Prentiss, Brandon de Wilde, Jill Hayworth, Dana Andrews, Burgess Meredith, Franchot Tone, Patrick O'Neal, Stanley Holloway, Barbara Bouchet, Slim Pickens, Carroll O'Connor and Henry Fonda.
