At present over 15,000 school systems, libraries, colleges and private schools are participating in the Careers Research Monograph program. Clyde Mehder, Vocational Service Director, was appointed to investigate the situation and report what part of the program might fit the Highlands situation.

At next Tuesday's meeting Rotarians will be privileged to hear a most unusual program presented by Mrs. Roy Schneider, Communist Ideology and the United Nations.

EMPLOYED AT STONE LANTERN

Mr. Hidemasa Suzuki of Kyoto, Japan, is again employed at the Stone Lantern Gift Shop where he was employed last summer. Mr. Suzuki has an antique shop with two branches in Kyoto. He will be in Highlands for about three months.

"GREAT CATHERINE"

Hilarious action, roguish dialogue, lavish settings and a scintillating cast amek Warner Bros.-Seven Arts' version of George Bernard Shaw's witty play, "Great Catherine," which plays Sunday and Monday, August 24 and 25 at the GALAX THEATRE, a triumphant revival of grand-style cinema comedy.

Starring Peter O'Toole, Jeanne Moreau, Zero Mostel and Jack Hawkins, the Technicolor Keep Films production belabors no social message. As its director Gordon Flemyng points out, "it is solely pure, unadulterated enterterm."

Shaw, in an introduction to the play first staged in London on Nov. 18, 1913, noted that Catherine the Great, Empress of Russia, was a striking woman of much character but few morals, a regent who fascinated, amused and awed her contemporaries. And today, she charms audiences as the flamboyant heroine of Shaw's "Great Catherine."

To insure that the best possible entertainment would result, producer Jules Buck insisted that every member of the cast be of first magnitude acting brilliance. Thus, veteran scene-stealer Akim Tamiroff has an enviable co-starring role. And, in featured roles are such diverse talents as Angela Scoular, a newcomer, and Marie Lohr, who has been acting for more than fifty years on the stage and screen.

On the technical side of the lights, the crew for "Great Catherine" is also impressive and versatile. The eighteenth century Russian and English costumes, for example, were designed by one of Britain's experts on period films, Margaret Furse.
