"GONE WITH THE WIND"

"Gone With the Wind, " acclaimed world wide as one of the great motion picture entertainments of all time, is now presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in new Wide-Screen and Metrocolor splendor, giving even greater power to the unforgettable love story.

This marks the sixth re-release since David O. Selznick's production of "Gone With the Wind" made motion picture history with its world premiere in Atlanta, Georgia, in December of 1939. The picture was last released during the Civil War Centennial year, 1961. The current presentation brings the epic drama to a younger as well as older generation of motion picturegoers as a colorful and exciting new experience in sight and sound.

Starring Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Leslie Howard and Olivia de Havilland, winner of ten Academy awards, and seen to date by a combined international audience of 295,000,000 persons, "Gone With the Wind" is now being shown as a roadshow attraction.

The history of "Gone With the Wind" is one of the most fascinating in the annals of movie-making. Margaret Mitchell's romantic novel of the South during Civil War days has remained a best-seller over the years in every language.

The motion picture public unanimously selected Clark Gable for the role of Rhett Butler. The demand for Gable as the dashing Southerner was so great that no other actor was ever considered. The selection of Vivien Leigh for Scarlett O'Hara came after an exhaustive two-year search and tests of well-known stage and screen feminine stars and unknowns alike.

The massive picture has 59 major speaking roles. Thousands of extras were used in spectacle scenes. The most elaborate and still acclaimed as a classic of filmmaking was the burning of Atlanta. The city as it was in 1864 was authentically created on 40 acres at the Selznick Studios in Culver City, California. Of the picture's 90 sets, 50 buildings alone were designed and erected in recreant Atlanta.
