

LAND OF THE WATERFALLS (Cont. from pg.18)

For those who collect waterfalls, there are also these:

Linville Falls - Just off the Blue Ridge Parkway near the town of Linville Falls.

Burningtown Falls - Near N.C. 28 north of Franklin between Wesser and Wayah Bald, about a mile from the highway over a graveled path.

Catawba Falls - near Ridgecrest, a couple miles off U.S. 70. It has five different levels.

Connestee Falls - On U.S. 276 about six miles south of Brevard. These are twin falls, each about 110 feet.

Indian Creek Falls - North of Bryson City above the Deep Creek campground in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Looking Glass Falls-on U.S. 276 in Pisgah National Forest between Wagon Gap and Brevard.

Melrose Falls - Between Saluda and Tryon, located right off the highway.

Pearson's Falls - Between Saluda and Tryon. A 75 foot cascade, it is located in a naturalists' paradise on a four-acre park site maintained by the Tryon Garden Club.

Shunkawaken Falls - located five miles north of White Oak Mountain via N.C. 108 between Rutherfordton and Tryon.

Silver Run Falls - Off of N.C. 107 a road from Cashiers that drops down into Whiteside Cove.

Soco Falls - on U.S. 19 near Soco Gap.

Wolf Creek Falls - left from Tuckasegee on N.C. 281 to Anvil Tongue, thence to National Rock Bridge that spans the Tuckasegee River.

There are many other falls to be seen wherever you travel in the mountains-small ones and large ones.

And for a heap of folks today they cast a special kind of spell.

For there is a certain enchantment in watching violent water plummeting downward, tumbling over big rock ledges, and filling the clean, musky air with an incessant rum.

A long life is barely enough for a man and a woman to understand each other; and to be understood is to love. The man who understands one woman is qualified to understand pretty well everything.
