"DOCTORS' WIVES"

This M.J. Frankovich production is a slick, spicy melodrama about love and hate. While it will bring to mind several old-fashioned potboilers, it adds several modern accoutrements of its own to quality for its contemporary setting. Dyan Cannon starts the ball rolling in the opening sequence when she suggest to her card-playing friends that she will sleep with all of their husbands and then inform each of them what they are doing wrong. The other wives are played by Rachel Roberts, Janice Rule, Marian McCargo and Cara Williams. The doctors are ably played by Richard Crenna, Gene Hackman, Carroll O'Connor and John Colicos.

"Doctors' Wives" will play Tue-Wed August 17-18 at the Galax Theatre.

evenings at 8:30 tonight, Friday and Saturday, a matinee Sunday at 2:30, Aug 15, and again the nights of Aug. 20, and 21. Tickets are available daily at the Wits End Shop, Main St., or call the theatre anytime for reservations, 526-2695. For the Sunday matinee, the theatre box office will open at 1:00 p.m.

To know how to grow old is the master work of wisdom, and one of the most difficult chapters in the great art of living.

Starring as the King and Queen are Robert and Anne Juergens, from Winter Park Fla. Dr. Juergens is head of the Theatre Arts and Speech Department and director of the Annie Russell Theatre, at Rollins College, and a well known actor. His wife, Anne, has also done many roles in various theatres.

Director Michael Hall cast Robert Smith as Richard(the Lionhearted), Rick Stanley as Geoffrey, Terry Madden as John, with David Traylor playing King Phillip of France, and Pat Nesbit as Alais. Kay Cortez is script girl, and lighting by Jim Painter. The interesting multi-level sets designed by Frank Bennett add much to the production. Apprentice Ed Douglas helped stage carpenter, Bill McLean, build the set.
