'Life' Is Being Mutilated

By WALTER GRAY
College Librarian

No, we've not yet turned into philosophers — just working up to it. This week we've chosen to berate and inform — perhaps next week we'll get back to the books.

The library copy of LIFE magazine for October 6 was recently found to be short of its innards. We discovered that pages 82-95 which deal with Housing Design were mysteriously missing. The job was neatly done and a credit to any old razor blade. We appreciate true artistry, but we hate to see such talent go to waste. Should any faculty member receive a treatise on the subject we hope that he or she will report to us in order that due recognition for the achievement might be given. Green stamps, anybody?

There are many signs that the joyful days of research for term papers are fast approaching. We count this a happy season in which we learn to know and work closely with the new students. Perhaps we can offer a few helpful hints and some needed explanations. A college library is not a Public Library. Rather, it is an integral part of the teaching program. Our library staff is not here to do your work for you. You are expected to learn how to use the catalog, indexes and bibliographies in the same manner as you are expected to learn your algebra or your historical data. We are here to help you find these tools and use them wisely — to help you get out of the blind alleys that the searcher occasionally winds up in. Only incidentally are we here to collect your fines for overdue books.

Experience shows us that many students waste much time through the sin of omission. Do list those authors and titles properly the first time and don't skimp on taking down full information from the catalog card. Do use the call slips provided for books and magazines and save them until you're sure you've recorded all the information you will need. . . We like to see you back, but not with that discouraged look that says, "Yes, I'm doing it all over again." Happy hunting!

Interfrat Party Tonight

The Atlantic Christian College Interfraternity Council will sponsor a party in the lobby of the classroom building tonight at 8 o'clock to kick-off fraternity - sorority rush week which begins Monday.

This affair is to be strictly informal, with the music provided from records.

The informal party is planned primarily to give the prospective rushees and the members of the Greek letter organizations an opportunity to become acquainted.

Interfraternity Council President, Sammy White said regarding the party: "The IFC of 1958-1959 is anticipating great results from this informal affair. This is something new on our campus and we feel that it is going to serve a definite purpose. It will acquaint the fraternities and sororities with the students, and acquaint the students with the fraternities and sororities."

The IFC spokesman went on to say, "Being informed regarding fraternity or sorority career of each student. We are planning an informal good time. We know that this will be worth while. We urge the support and attendance of the students in this kick-off for 1958-1959 fraternity - sorority rush week."

The preparations for this party are in the hands of the eight Greek letter organizations on campus. Alpha Sigma Phi and Phi Sigma Tau are in charge of decorations. Sigma Tau Chi and Delta Sigma Phi are arranging for music, with Sigma Phi Epsilon and Omega Chi providing intermission activities. White will preside.

Student Urges Quick Petitions

Dear Jim:

I would like to say that I realize the professors at ACC are busy people, however, I would like to know why our petitions are not acted on quickly. I understand that there is a lot of "red tape" involved, but if anything is important enough to warrant a petition, it is important enough to warrant a quick answer. Actually, I believe that some of the petitions demand quick action.

Thank You,
A Petitioner

The Central committee of the college is the group that acts on all petitions. When questioned about the matter of delay the committee said that at the present time it does not have any pending petitions.

the committee also expressed a desire that all students understand more clearly the procedure for submitting a petition. When a student wishes to present a petition he should see his advisor and talk the matter over completely.

If the student still wishes to petition after discussing the matter with his advisor, he may do so by presenting the petition to his advisor. The advisor will then forward the petition, with his comments, to the Central committee.

Only through this procedure will petitions be accepted by the Central committee.

Dear Jim:

Can something be done about the drains on the terrace directly outside the Classroom Building? Some of them are without covers and before long some student or possibly a faculty member (heaven forbid) might step into one of these open holes and be injured.

Oops

I spoke with Milton L. Adams, Business Manager of the college, and he said that the matter would be taken care of immediately. Because of the urgency of the matter there is a possibility that it will be cleared up before the printing of this paper.

CCA Attempting Co-Op Program

By RALPH MESSICK

The Campus Christian Association is working diligently in order to plan a program which will stimulate student and faculty participation on the campus of Atlantic Christian College.

This year the association is attempting to work with the other organizations presently existing on the campus. It is believed that in this manner more students will be reached and the CCA will better serve its purpose in the college life.

Although this program may seem new to the majority of the readers it may be recalled that last year the "old" Student Christian Association began this cooperation with other campus organizations by bringing resource personnel in the field of business to relate the area of business to the practice of Christianity. It is hoped that this year's CCA may carry out this plan more effectively.

Peele Will Design Stage Sets

The Stage and Script Club, drawing ever closer to curtain time for its production, is now concentrating on sets and costumes.

In their presentation of The Taming of the Shrew, club members have decided to use original sets designed by Sanford Peele. These sets are in a revolutionary, new, modernistic pattern with brilliant colors and abstract designs.

Costuming for the production will be Elizabethian in style and striking in the use of color. The club members feel that this display of color in both sets and costumes will best express the farcical nature of the play.

Rehearsals are in session with the following planned for the future: Tues. Oct 21, 7 p.m. Act III (no books); 8 p.m. Act II; 9 p.m. Act IV; Wed. Oct. 22, 7 p.m. Act IV (memorized); 8 p.m. Act III (no books); Tues. Oct. 28, 7 p.m. Act IV (memorized); 8:30 p.m. Act V (blocking); Wed. Oct. 29, 7 p.m. Act IV (no books); 8 p.m., Acts I and II (no books).

Ring Representative To Visit

Lee Blackwell, Goldsboro, special representative for the L. G. Balfour Company, will be on the Atlantic Christian College campus Friday, October 17, to take orders for class rings.

Members of the Junior and Senior classes at the college are eligible to purchase the rings, it was explained today by John E. Weems, Director of Student Activities at the college. However, another requirement is that a student must have completed 78 semester hours of work in order to place an order for a ring.

Mr. Blackwell will be in the B-hunk to discuss rings with the Juniors and Seniors and to take their ring orders, it was explained.

Miss Winstead Wins Cake Award

Atlantic Christian College has gained a great deal of prestige due to the achievements of Miss Janet Winstead, a member of the science department faculty of the college. Miss Winstead displayed the versatility of the faculty by winning a prize at the Wilson County Fair for a cake that she baked and entered in the cake - baking contest. Efforts by the Collegiate to discover the recipe have failed.

Every Girl Seeks Band-Box Look

By GWEN STANLEY

Organization of clothing gives every individual that smooth, band-box look that every young woman should endeavor to create. The band - box look comes indirectly from having all grooming items in particular places and using them at regularly scheduled times. Better grooming anywhere and especially in college living is built on the pillar of organization. What is the selection of skirt and complementary sweater or trousers and appropriate shirt but ORGANIZATION? Polishing shoes, putting Sunday's hat into a box, folding sweaters for plastic bags are all part of organization. A day set aside for shampooing the hair and grooming the nails can help you to be an attractive, poised individual.

Time is saved by organization.

Efficiency is increased by scheduling activities. Grooming is important, but studying in preparation for classes is necessary. Specific study space and time can reduce the number of hours wasted and make possible greater effectiveness in classes. Do you have a specific study place? All the needed materials together? Sharpened pencils, pen and ink, dictionary, paper, paper clips?

Learn to budget your time — jot down daily reminders — and read them; return library book; write short theme; study history; review today's class notes; write a short note home. Can you do all these with your present schedule? Those wrinkles on your brow because of studies will disappear when the time is planned. And you'll have more time for fun, too!

The hair style Louise is now wearing — very becoming! Bouquets to the young women and men attending the Top Hat dance—you were lovely; you were handsome! Many of the girls are wearing attractive monograms on their clothes. NEXT WEEK: When And Where To Use Gloves.

Stage And Script Entertained At Play

At the Stage and Script Club's meeting on Tuesday, October 7, a one-act play was presented by members of the club. It was directed by Miss Wilma Hairr.

Members of the group said the play was well done with Mary Lou Bryan, John Harrell and Carl Metts in the cast.
