NUMBER EIGHTEEN

Bobby Dunn Elected Head Of Cooperative Association

By Jim Bishop
Collegiate Editor

Bobby Dunn, an Atlantic Christian College junior from Pine-top, was elected President of the ACC Cooperative Association in a run-off election held yesterday.

Dunn defeated Kenneth Brinson, a junior from Rocky Mount. Dunn, in the run-off, polled 343 votes to Brinson's 204. It was the largest run-off ballot total in the history of the college.

The day before the two candidates won the right to oppose each other in the run-off when they topped the ballot in the college's annual presidential election. Dunn had 243 votes Wednesday and Brinson garnered 189. Everette Bryant, the third candidate from Cramerton, polled 166 votes and fell out of the race.

The 598 votes cast Wednesday set a record for presidential elections at ACC. It was the largest vote ever cast in any election on the ACC campus.

After the fireworks were over today Dunn thanked all his supporters. Brinson said he would not be a candidate for vice-president, and Bryant said he would definitely be a vice-presidential candidate.

BOBBY DUNN

For Dunn, next year will mark his return to the Executive Board of the Cooperative Association after only one year's lay-off. He has previously served two years on the board.

Dunn was the acknowledged front-runner in the campaign. At the outset he had the support of a fraternity-sorority coalition on the campus and most experts predicted that he would take the race.

Brinson also had his own fraternity's support and probably that of its sister sorority. However, he seemed to be interested in making the fight on the basis of overcoming the Greek Letter faction that has been the decision maker in recent campus elections.

Bryant had to fight his way on to the ticket, so to speak. He was not nominated by the Executive Board of the Cooperative Association, but had to win a place by means of petition. He appealed to the day students in an effort to

Large Course Offerings Set For Summer Session

The largest number of course offerings in the history of the Atlantic Christian College Summer Session was announced today by Dr. Millard P. Burt, ACC Dean.

Having two five-week terms, the summer session will open at Atlantic Christian on June 1. Dr. Burt said there will be 53 courses offered during the first term of the summer session which will end on July 8, and that 41 courses will be offered during the second term which will open on July 9, and will close on August 14.

A special pre-registration for the summer session will be held this spring for regular students, at ACC, Dr. Burt said.

He also explained that the normal load for each term of the session will be six semester hours. However, any student may take a seven hour load if it includes Business 071 (Personal Typewriting). Otherwise, only graduating seniors or students with a "B" average may take seven hours, for which special permission is required.

Classes will begin at 7 a.m. with the first period ending at 8:15 a.m. The second period will start at 8:30 a.m. and will end at 9:45 a.m. The third period will run from 10 a.m. to 11:15 a.m., and the fourth period will begin at 11:30 a.m. and will end at 12:15 p.m.

Some special classes will meet in the afternoons and in the evenings.

Schedules of the two terms are now available at the information desk in the college Administration Building.

Dr. Burt urged students today to talk with their advisors concerning summer school courses. "Many of our students have expressed a desire to attend the summer session," Dr. Burt said, "and that is why we have increased the course offerings. I doubt if many students will not be able to select the courses they need during the summer."

Social Studies Department Cites Vocational Flooding

By BOB COLLINS

Man and his relationship with his society and man's place in his society are of such importance that the department of Social Science at Atlantic Christian College has established a program to impress in the minds of the students the significance of a study of the past and present civilizations.

The Collegiate, in an effort to find the reasons behind the development of the social studies program, interviewed Dr. Daniel J. McFarland, Chairman of the Social Science Department.

In this interview it was pointed out that the history program is not primarily interested in vocational training. The field in which history teachers work is one of the few overcrowded areas of academic work. In this field, the supply of history teachers, both in secondary schools and colleges exceeds the demand. Therefore, the ACC department does not seek to train history or sociology teachers.

Rather than give vocational training, the department seeks to show the student the importance of the knowledge of the past and how to apply this knowledge to the present day situations that are encountered.

Dr. McFarland pointed out that workers in all fields need a study of history, whether their chosen field be religion, literature, journalism, business, math and science or any other. The department chairman went on to show that the teachers in the history department cannot hope to give all the facts about any phase of history to the students. They can, however, create enough interest in periods of time and personalities that the sincere student will want to read on his own and seek to fill in the details through his own study.

Dr. McFarland went on to say that the reading of history as a pastime can be more interesting than many hobbies commonly chosen by Americans. He illustrated this with the point that one of North Carolina's most eminent authorities in the civil war is a medical doctor in Goldsboro. The doctor reads books about the war between the states as a hobby and has come to have a great store of knowledge about that era.

In order to familiarize the student with the eras of importance, the department offers courses in Western Civilization which cover the time from the development of civilization in the Fertile Crescent to the civilization of France, Germany, England, and finally the United States.

In addition to these courses, there are studies in Eastern Civilization and Latin American Civilization offered. There are courses in U. S. history and two national courses, one on Russia and the other on England.

The men teaching these courses are all instructors with graduate studies. Dr. McFarland has his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania. William F. Troutman will receive his doctorate from Duke University in June.

Robert Parker Wilson will go to the University of North Carolina next year to do further work on his doctorate. Robert G. Capps has finished his preliminary examinations for his doctorate in American University in Washington, D. C.

New Club Is Organized; Phillips Named President

The first civic service organization to appear on the Atlantic Christian College campus was formed last Friday night.

The Circle K Club is the name of this new and unique type of organization. The local Kiwanis Club was instrumental in bringing this organization to the ACC campus.

The objects of the Circle K Club are; to emphasize the advantages of the American-Canadian way of life, to provide an opportunity for leadership training in service and to serve on the campus and in the community. The Circle K Club is an international club and has chapters on the campuses of many American and Canadian Colleges and Universities.

The club has an executive committee consisting of eight members. They are the president, vice-president, the secretary, the treasurer and four directors. Last Friday night the local Circle K Club elected its executive committee. They are Jack Phillips President; Milton Roush, Vice President; Jim Van Camp, Secretary; William Shouldice, Treasurer, and Bill Bond, Everette Purvis, Bobby Watson and David Mustian to serve as the club's directors.

John H. Rich, Dean of Men, will serve as the faculty advisor for the club.

Collegiate Wins Top Press Award

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — The Collegiate, published at Atlantic Christian College, won a first place award for senior colleges in a national scholastic press association contest, it was announced today.

The contest is sponsored annually by Columbia University and college and university newspapers from all over the nation were entered in the contest.

Plays To Be Presented Tonight

Stage and Script Club of Atlantic Christian College will close out a two-day run of three student authored plays tonight in Howard Chapel.

The three plays form an outstanding play bill that is receiving the full treatment by the local thespians. Tonight's performances will get underway at 8:15 p.m.

Top attraction of the bill is "The Fledgling," a prize winner written by ACC senior Claude Anthony.

Anthony's play stars Gerald Southerland as "Mr. Sampson," the father. The play deals with a personality conflict between a father that wants to make the decisions and a son that would like to make his own. Others in the play are Kenneth Roberts, Joanna Huffer, and Suebelle Jackson.

Talented veteran of many stage roles at ACC, Miss Anne Nelson, will play the lead role in "High Hill," a play written by Sanford Peele. Jay Prillaman, Jimmy McComas, Ann Jenkins, Nancy Weddle, Don Wrenn, Ralph Messick, Glendal Jenkins and John Vernon form the cast.

James Boswell and John White will co-star in "The Old Man And The Church," an original by Carl Metz. Others in the cast are Vernon, Mary Lou Park and Bobby Gray.

A large audience saw the three plays last night. The acting was up to the usual campus standards. The plays indicated that students at Atlantic Christian have considerable promise as playwrights.

The playbill provided an entertaining evening for anyone. It is hoped that a large crowd will be on hand again tonight to see the second run of the plays.

Campus Awaits Dead Week Lull

Atlantic Christian College's busy academic program, sometimes rushed because of the heavy load of extra-curricular activities, will rule the roost next week as Dead Week is observed on the campus.

One week of suspended campus activity is now being observed each semester at the college to give students a chance to hit the books and catch up on their academic work.

The week was established by action of the Executive Board of the Atlantic Christian College Cooperative Association.

During Dead Week, meetings are postponed and all outside classroom activity comes to a halt. Fraternities and sororities will not meet. The Collegiate will not be published.

However, assembly and chapel will be held next week. At the regular assembly time Tuesday, class meetings will be held.

Some students, rushed to the extreme as the spring begins, were looking forward to the week with anticipation today. "This will give some of us a chance to get our brains back in order," one harried

17 Students Will Attend Asheville NCEA Meeting

Seventeen students from Atlantic Christian College will attend the State Convention of the North Carolina Education Association in Asheville, D. G. A. Constantine, Chairman of the Department of Education and Psychology, announced today. Dr. Constantine, Dr. Vida Elliot and Miss Ann Bullock, members of the Department of Education and Psychology, will also attend the convention which opens Wednesday, March 18, and continues to Saturday, March 21.

Atlantic Christian College will take an active part in the program that is to be presented at the convention. Display Booth number 87 in the Asheville Municipal Auditorium, where a major portion of the activities will take place, will be sponsored by the college.

ACC will also sponsor a breakfast at 8 a.m. Saturday morning in the Green Room of the S & W Cafeteria. Dr. Millard P. Burt, Dean of Atlantic Christian College, will be the speaker at this breakfast. Mrs. Robert Paschall of Wilson, Secretary of the ACC Alumni Association, will preside at the breakfast. Dr. Constantine and James D. Daniell, Director of Alumni Affairs, are also included on the program.

The Future Teachers' program will open with registration Thursday afternoon, 1:30 p.m., at the Hotel Battery Park in Asheville. Dr. Kenneth Howe, Dean of the School of Education, Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, will be the speaker at the first session.

Election of Future Teacher officers will be held Friday morning at 9:30 a.m. at the Hotel Battery Park. In this election Miss Dorothy Adcock of Atlantic Christian College will be a candidate for the office of Vice-President. Miss Beverly Edwards, also a student at ACC, is a candidate for Miss Future Teacher. The candidates for Miss Future Teacher will be presented to the convention Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Asheville Auditorium.

Another highlight of the convention program is the Division of Higher Education meeting which will be held Friday morning at 9:30 a.m. at the Central Methodist Church in Asheville.

Two-State Choral Tour Slated

The Atlantic Christian College Chorus will visit 10 cities in the Carolinas on a two-state choral tour scheduled to begin on Sunday, April 26.

Highlight of the tour will be the appearance of the chorus at the North Carolina Convention of Christian Churches on Wednesday, April 29, in Charlotte, and at the South Carolina Convention of Christian Churches in Aiken, S. C., on Friday, May 1.

Announcement of the tour was made today. Officials said the basic schedule calls for the chorus to sing at Christian Churches in the cities to be visited and that ap-schools and television stations are now being worked into the master schedule.

A traveling group of 50 will make the trip which will open with the chorus singing at the morning services of the Hillyer Memorial Christian Church in Raleigh, on Sunday, April 26, at 11 a.m. That night the chorus will move on to Durham for the evening service at the Holloway Street Christian Church there.

On Monday night, April 27, the chorus is scheduled to present a program at the First Christian Church in Greensboro. The following night the chorus will sing at the First Christian Church in Winston-Salem, and will travel from there to Charlotte for the appearance at the N. C. convention.

On Thursday, April 30, the chorus will travel from Charlotte to Charleston, S. C., to sing that evening at the First Christian Church in Charleston, before moving on the next day to the South Carolina convention in Aiken.

The Chorus will arrive in Columbia, S. C., on Saturday, May 2, and will remain there until Sunday, May 3, to sing at the morning service of the First Christian Church of Columbia. That night the group will return to North Carolina to sing at the evening service at the First Christian Church in Goldsboro. The touring group will close out the trip at the Farmville Christian Church on Monday night, May 4.

James V. Cobb of the Atlantic Christian music faculty will serve as director of the chorus on tour. The traveling group is being selected from the college's large chorus which numbers close to 70 members.
