NUMBER NINETEEN

Candidates Are Nominated For Main Campus Positions

By BOB COLLINS

At the regular meeting of the Atlantic Christian College Cooperative Association in the Disciplina Room of the Library Monday, the Executive Board made nominations for the coming elections and appointed a study commission to investigate the election procedures now used and to draft constitutional amendments concerning elections.

Nominated for the office of vice-president of the Cooperative Association were Wayne Quinton, Everette Bryant and Ken Brinson. Bryant and Brinson are automatically candidates for the office because they were presidential candidates.

Nominations for the office of secretary were held. Miss Emily Waters, Miss Joan Overton, and Miss Zorelda Walston were nominated.

Those selected by the board to be candidates for the office of treasurer were Kenneth Bryan and Sammy White.

Only one nomination, that of Sally Scudder, was presented for the office of Head cheerleader.

Nominations from the publications Committee were received. Those nominated for Co-Editor of The Collegiate were Ralph Messick, Bob Collins and Frank Hunnicutt. Nomination for Business Manager of The Collegiate was Miss Betty Pomfrey.

Nominated for Editor of the Pine Knot was Miss Joanna Huffer.

In other offices for the Pine Knot, Miss Pat Murray was nominated for Assistant Editor, Bill Minschew for Art Editor and Miss Flora Griffin for Business Manager.

Election procedures were discussed. The names of the nominees were read in the chapel program Tuesday. Elections will be held on the Wednesday after the spring vacation. The same election procedures will be used for this election as were used for the presidential election.

In discussion of the election procedures and provisions, several weaknesses were pointed out. A study commission consisting of Bob Riley, Steve Ginn, Anna Lovelace and John E. Weems, Director of Student Activities, was appointed to study the election matters.

In the meeting it was pointed out that the constitution needs revision

Department Serves To Develop A Growing Interest In Art Field

Since the end of World War Two, there has been a definite return to interest in the fine arts in America. In keeping with this new renaissance, the Art Department of Atlantic Christian College has developed a program that is progressive and functional, and has drawn plans for future development that will keep the department one of the most up-to-date in the South.

In seeking to inform the students and faculty of ACC as to the progress and program of the department, The Collegiate interviewed Russell W. Arnold, Chairman of the Art Department.

In the interview, it was pointed out that before 1951 ACC did not have a department that dealt with art alone. In 1951 Dr. D. Ray Lindley, then president of the college, contacted Mr. Arnold who was a student at the University of North Carolina about a position as an art instructor at ACC.

This move was a result of the decision that if ACC was to be a true liberal arts college, it needed expanded curriculum. The next year, Mr. Arnold came to ACC and the department known then as the Philosophy and Arts Department offered 12 courses in art. These were taught by Mr. Arnold and Dr. S. Perry Case.

After two years, the plans for forming a separate art department were formulated. When Dr. Travis A. White became president of the college, the plans were carried out and the present department was formed.

Last year, the curriculum became so large that a part time instructor was hired. At the present time there are two full time instructors in the department. It is hoped that plans to hire a third full time instructor will be made.

When the third instructor comes, one of the teachers will deal primarily with the fine arts such as paintings, studio work, and sculpture. Another will be mainly concerned with crafts and other shop courses. The third will function in the academic field.

It is hoped that plans will be made for a separate building to house both the art and music departments. When the new building is completed, greatly expanded facilities for the Art Department will be available.

The Art Department deals with two main areas of work. Some students major in art, especially fine arts and commercial, and many others that plan to be teachers take extensive work in art education. In addition to these, nearly every student takes work in the required survey course.

The department recognizes the necessity of education courses in art. The future plans make provisions for more and better educational courses. With more space, more instructors and better equipment, the Art Department will be able to do a more thorough job in educational courses and in courses taken by art majors.

The educational courses are not the primary concern of the department. The department believes that as a part of the growth of liberal arts education, fine arts need to be taught.

It was also shown in the interview that a great deal of the present emphasis on fine arts is the attempt of people to balance the emphasis on technical education. Technical education cannot develop a well rounded individual. Therefore, those phases of study which develop the spiritual aspects of

Date For The Opening Of Summer Term Changed

A change in the opening date and a revision of the course offerings for Atlantic Christian College's Summer Session were announced today by Dr. Mildred P. Burt, ACC DEAN.

Dr. Burt said the summer session's first five week term will open on June 3, instead of June 1, as was originally planned. The change in opening dates was made to allow for the late closing of many public schools in the area that were delayed because of winter snows.

Late registrations will be allowed for those who do not get out of school in time to make the June 3 registration, Dr. Burt said. Many schools in the area will not suspend operations until June 5.

Several courses have been dropped from the original summer schedule but the college will still offer the largest number of courses in history during the summer session.

The first five week term dates run from June 3, to July 8. The second term will open on July 9, and will close on August 14.

Printed schedules of the summer school course offerings are now available at the Registrar's office in the Administration Building, Dr. Burt announced.

Students To Get Nine Day Break

The books will be thrown into the corner, the dorm doors will be closed and classrooms will gather the dust of inactivity at Atlantic Christian College for nine days after tomorrow.

The college's family of students and teaching faculty members will take the annual spring holiday break from Saturday until Monday, April 6.

It will be one of the longest spring holiday sessions in the college's history. Usually it runs only one week.

Students will be off to many far-flung places from Massachusetts to Florida, and from Michigan to Texas.

This year the spring holidays will be even nicer than usual since Easter comes during the period.

Classes will be held through Friday afternoon for regular students at the college. Special students who come on Saturday are required to attend classes day after tomorrow before getting time off.

College officials expressed wishes for an enjoyable Easter as students prepared to leave the campus. Many of them cautioned students to be careful while driving home and while driving during the stay at home.

Classes will re-convene Monday morning, April 6, at 8 a.m. Most students will return to the campus on Sunday afternoon, April 5, to get set for the grind that will begin the next day.

It will be the last break from classes before the end of the spring semester on May 24.

The Circle K Club, the first men's service organization at Atlantic Christian College, received its charter on March 19.

Dunn Will Keep Ear To Ground In Getting Ready For Big Job

By Jim Bishop
Collegiate Editor

A young Atlantic Christian College student who has the biggest job of his career ahead of him, beginning next September, is taking a long and complex look at those people surrounding him these days.

Don't be surprised to see Bobby Dunn staring during the next few months. Dunn is the President-elect of the Atlantic Christian College Cooperative Association and in this position he will be the key figure in campus government in the next nine-month college session.

Dunn says he can't put his finger on the exact reason for weakening government on the ACC campus, but he does not believe that all the trouble lies with those who are elected to head and to operate the government.

The new president says he believes some of the apathy can be attributed to the individual student on the campus. "This is a friendly campus," Dunn said, "and, in fact, that's the reason why I came here as a student." Dunn says, however, that he thinks all the friendliness is not accompanied by a genuine interest in how things operate at ACC. "I don't believe enough students care enough about what is going on," he says. "If they did we would have a stronger government."

During the coming year Dunn hopes to increase this interest by students in their government. "We are going to try to let them know, at all times, what is going on. If they know maybe they will express some wishes as to the outcome."
