NUMBER EIGHT

ACC Band To Perform

More than likely the 1963-64 Atlantic Christian College Band began one day some six or seven years ago when a small boy or girl went home from high school and announced that he was going to be in the band.

By the time he plays his first rehearsal with the AC Band, he has had approximately 800 hours of musical instruction by a highly trained and talented teacher. He has participated in some 12 parades and almost 40 football game's half-time shows. In addition, he has played nearly 20 public concerts and has spent a minimum of nine hours a week in some purely musical endeavor during the school year.

When the young musician becomes a member of the Atlantic Christian College Band his earlier program serves as a point of departure in the enlargement of his musical training and experiences. From the start new challenges meet him. A maximum of three rehearsals a week put real demands upon his playing ability. He is expected to perform music that is more difficult than he is perhaps accustomed to. More than likely he will have to adjust to playing in a relatively small size band which, of necessity leans heavily upon each individual member.

During the course of the year the band member will perform at least four times in concerts for the student body and general public. On Nov. 21 of this year the band will present its annual Fall Concert. Included in the program will be music by Williams, Lathan, Bartok-Suchoff, Prokofiev, Chabrier, Grundman, and Fillmore. The music varies from a Spanish Rhapsody to a Civil War Suite to Themes from Offenbach.

The ACC Band will join forces with the AC Chorus in a Christmas program for the student body and faculty in December.

Dr. Kramer Speaks On World Issues

Dr. Leonard J. Kramer, associate director of the Department of International Relations of the National Council of Churches, was Religious Emphasis speaker this week. Dr. Kramer spoke at 10:15 a.m. on Tuesday and at 10 a.m. on Wednesday. He also led an informal discussion on Tuesday night, spoke at Christian Service Workshop on Wednesday, and attended several classes.

In his Tuesday address, "How Are International Affairs Your Affairs?", Dr. Kramer discussed the existence of man in a changing world. He stated that man's technological improvement had outstripped by a thousand years his sense of moral responsibility and ability to deal effectively with his problems. He pointed out the mass destruction of people with whom we cannot reach agreement. He said that the margin of error had decreased tremendously in the modern world.

On Wednesday, Dr. Kramer spoke on "What Can I, as a Christian, Do Today?" in another all-campus assembly. He explained the difficulty of communication between persons of differing backgrounds and nationalities. He said that great tact is needed in dealing with other men.

Library Hours Viewed At Exec Board Meeting

The Executive Board of the Co-operative Association held its regular meeting Monday, Nov. 11, in room 212 of the Classroom Building. President Maurice Belanger conducted the meeting which was centered around several important student matters.

Eloise Reel, Women's Dorm Association President, brought up the matter of library hours which has been a topic of discussion recently. She stated that she has spoken to the head Librarian and together they had worked out a questionnaire which is to be given to the student body. The questionnaire is to find out the needs of the students of Atlantic Christian pertaining to the library and to see if a revision of library hours is necessary.

President Belanger brought up the question of the recent controversy over unsettled financial matters of the Co-operative Association. This controversy has developed over the 1962 - 1963 Coop Budget which has not been straightened out at present. Mr. Belanger said he would meet with the organizations involved and try to clarify the situation so as to facilitate better control of this year's budget.

63 Freshman Class To Head Clean-Up

The members of the Freshman Class of 1963 have great pride in Atlantic Christian College. In order to keep the ACC campus beautiful the class is sponsoring a clean-up campaign.

During the week of Nov. 18-23 a special emphasis will be placed upon keeping the campus clean. Posters, trashcans, and other reminders will be placed around campus to help the students get into the habit of putting their litter in the proper places.

The Freshman class feels that the appearance of the campus can and should be improved by keeping it clean. This can be done only if each individual student gives his full co-operation by doing his part to keep the campus clean.

It is the hope of the Freshman Class that this clean-up campaign will start the ball rolling for a neater, more attractive campus.

Owens commented that several complaints had been brought to him concerning the lighting of the campus post office. Complaints had arisen because of the poor lighting during the hours the post office is closed and the Bohunk is open. Dean of Students, Robert E. Bennett commented that the college is planning to purchase around 3,000 new boxes to replace the worn out ones now being used and also to improve the general structure of the post office.

Henry Lee, Freshman Class Senator, spoke to the board on the problem of line breaking in the lunch room. Richard Surles moved to have the board contact proper campus officials and look into the possibility of having a guard rail put around each side of the room. The motion was defeated. However President Belanger offered to look into the situation.

President Belanger announced to the board that a group of entertainers called the "Billy Butterfield Sextet" was available during the first part of February at a reduced rate. The board decided that since times available were so close to Homecoming that it would not be wise to contract the group.
