"Operation Big Drop" Underway

Moral Case Is Discussed

At the Executive Board meeting Monday night, Randy Smart, senior class president, recommended that the Board refer the problem of line-breaking in the cafeteria to the Discipline and Morals Committee. The motion passed.

In other business, Richard Surles, editor of the Pine Knot, reported that the deadline for the Pine Knot had been met on time, and that he expected the annual to be ready for delivery to the student body during the first week in May. Rick Harrison stated that the Campus Christian Association would be sponsoring reviews, made by the students and faculty, on the controversial book, "Honest To God". He further stated that there would be three two-day seminars on various topics.

Cookie Wickham, vice-president, announced that the United States flag flown on campus had been destroyed during the recent bad weather. A motion was then made to purchase a new nylon-wool flag. The motion was passed.

In further business, Martha Sue Mewborn, president of the Pan Hellenic Council, moved that the Executive Board recommend to the proper authorities to put door closers on the doors of the Bohunk. The motion was amended to include the fixing of the second door in the Classroom Building.

Bob Parvin, day student senator, moved that the Executive Board submit a recommendation to the proper administrative officials that two events instead of one be placed on the College Calendar during one day. Parvin cited the growth of the school and the future growth as justifying his request.

Freshman Girl Dance Planned

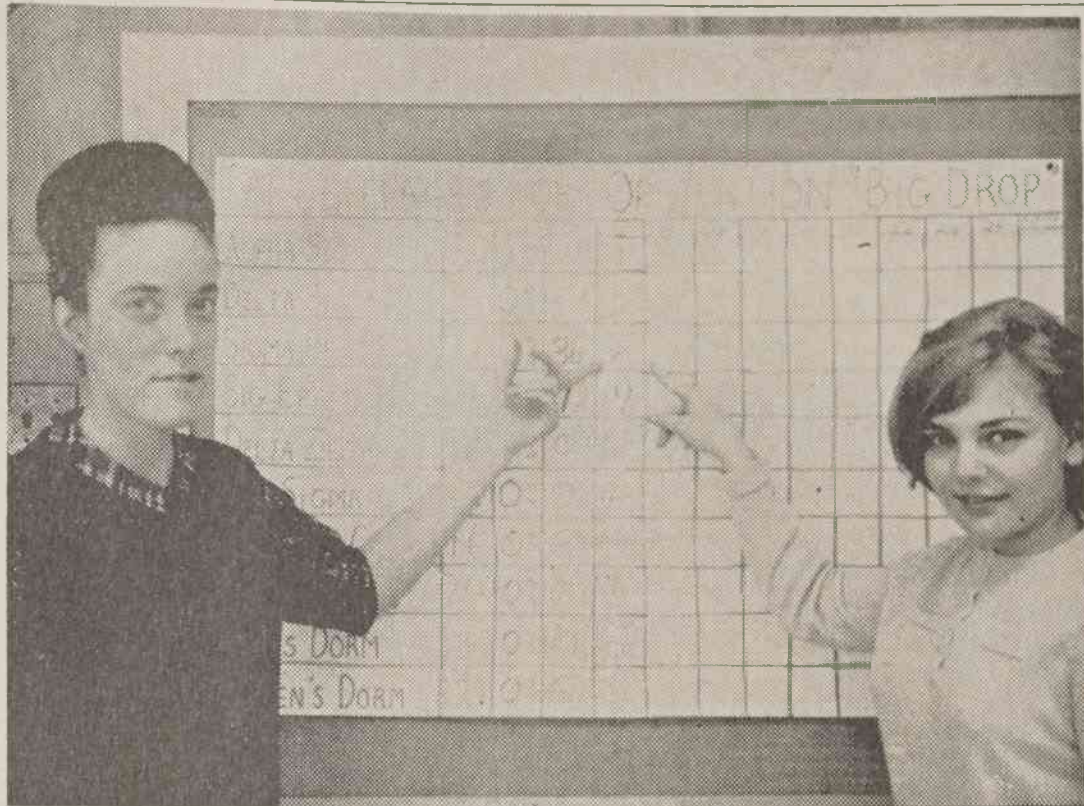

By JOHN HYSOON

The annual Most Popular Freshman Girl Dance has become somewhat of a custom on the ACC Social Calendar, and for a number of years has been sponsored by Sigma Pi. One year it was held as a Sadie Hawkins Dance, but it was decided to keep it as a dance in itself. This has always been one of the most successful events of each year, and the way the plans are shaping up, this year's will be better than ever.

This year the Most Popular Freshman Girl Dance will be held Friday, February 25th, from eight until twelve p.m., in the Carolina Room of the Cherry Hotel. Dress will be semi-formal. The charge for admission will be $2 per couple. Couples only. Music will be provided by Gene Barber and the "Cavaliers."

The "Cavaliers" is one of the fastest rising groups in the Carolinas. They made a great show at the Pine Knot Dance and are backing Martha and the "Vandellas" in their concert on the 21st.

Pictures of the candidates for the various organizations will be posted in front of the Classroom Building for the week prior to the dance. At the dance, you may cast your ballot when you enter, or you may wait until after the candidates are formally presented during the first intermission. The Most Popular Freshman Girl will be crowned during the second intermission.

THE PRESSURE IS ON—Sharon Walston and Paula Fulghum point out here that the pressure is on in joining up with "Operation Big Drop". The chart shows the number of people and the percentage from the organizations to pledge blood. At this point Sigma Pi is ahead with 36 per cent of its members pledged.

Foundation And Private Gifts Aid In ACC Building Program

By ANN JOHNSON

A very important part of the programs for improvement and expansion at ACC in recent years has been the gifts of various foundations. Among the largest of these have been two $25,000 gifts, one from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation and the other from the Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation. These are to be used specifically for the library improvement project. Another has been a gift of $8700 from the National Science Foundation. This amount was matched by ACC and used to buy scientific equipment.

These gifts are largely the result of the work of a foundation committee consisting of faculty representatives from each department, and administration members with Mr. David L. Cleveland, Director of Development, as its chairman. The main functions of the committee are to stimulate the various departments to seek available gifts college to the same foundation.

Explaining what a foundation is, Mr. Cleveland mentioned four different types of what might generally be called such. They were independent foundations such as Ford, Kellogg, etc. with their own board of trustees and set of regulations; company-sponsored foundations which are those of business corporations such as Sears, General Electric, oil companies, or smaller local concerns; family foundations established by an individual as a philanthropic medium; and government foundations whose funds come from taxes and are appropriated by Congress. Mr. Cleveland said that there were not usually many restrictions on the use of the gifts and those which were restricted had been consistent with the college's program.

During ACC's last building fund campaign in 1963, Burlington Industries pledged $15,000. R. J. Reynolds also gave $5,000 although not in the name of a foundation.

According to Mr. Cleveland, although large foundation gifts attract much attention and are certainly useful, most support for higher education is from individual contributions. This is not only true of ACC but generally of education across the country. Informed estimates set the total assets of foundations at $15 billion while people die leaving that amount each year. The American Association of Fund-raising Council estimated that in 1964 $1.8 billion was given to all education. In that same year less than $200 million was given by foundations.

In the next few years Mr. Cleveland foresees for ACC continued efforts to obtain foundation funds and increased emphasis on individual gifts for endowment funds. An effort is now being made to finance a balcony from foundations and to act as a clearinghouse to avoid multiple or conflicting requests from the different departments of the in the new gymnasium through funds from the Kresge Foundation. Nearly all the gifts received by the college are now being used for construction purposes. The additional emphasis on endowment funds is the result of a need for more student scholarships and increased faculty pay to which foundations seldom contribute.

The excellent support of local companies and individuals to ACC was also cited by Mr. Cleveland who suggested the probability of another building fund campaign in 1967.

Campus Movie

The movie, "Back Street" will be shown in the Howard Chapel on February 18th at 3:00-5:00, and at 7:00-9:00.

Organizations Compete For Blood Donors

"Operation Big Drop" got off to a good start this week as over 73 students, faculty, and administrative staff signed up to give blood during the campus Bloodmobile visit Thursday, Feb. 24. The Bloodmobile will be located in the lobby of Hackney Hall from 1:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

In order to encourage a large amount of participation in the Bloodmobile visit, student leaders have organized the drive so that ten organizations will be in competition with each other to get the highest possible percentage of participation. The ten organizations include the three sororities, four fraternities, Men and Woman's Dormitory Association, and the Day Student Association.

Located in the lobby of the Classroom Building is a chart to post the daily, cumulative percentage of members of each group which have signed up to give blood.

Marshall Smith, chairman of the Drive, pointed out that every student belongs to at least one of the ten organizations "During the next week," he said, "we are hoping that every student will give serious consideration to taking part in this important community project."

"All organizations are encouraged to turn in their pledge cards by 7:00 p.m. each day in the lobby of the SGA Building. This will enable the Bloodmobile Committee to post the percentages of participation the following morning," Smith concluded.

Vice Chairman of the Drive, Bobbie Ellis, announced that a booth would be set up in the lobby of the Classroom Building Friday, Feb. 18 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. She pointed out that persons manning the booth would be ready to answer any question concerning the Red Cross Blood Program as well as to sign persons up to donate.
