

Constitution Passed By Executive Board

By JOYCE COPELAND

The Day Student Constitution was approved by the Executive Board last week. Kenneth O'Connell, president of the organization, asked the board for $50 from the General Fund to help his group with Homecoming and other activities during the year. He explained that the day students have already spent $7 on their Homecoming candidate. The rest of the proposed fund was to be used to help arouse interest among the some 700 members of the organization. O'Connell explained that they have planned to issue a directing mail newsletter. Dr. Bennett pointed out that it would cost approximately $42 to mail these letters. This would leave about $1 for paper and printing.

The question arose as to whether or not the money would do any good or as Steve Dollar expressed it, "Does the means justify the end." The board finally approved a motion by Dollar to request the day students to bring a tentative budget before the board.

"Money is the root of all evil," and the root of confusion for the crusading exec board. The CCA represented by the board member Paul Land, asked for $100 from the General Fund. The CCA is required to present four convocations a year. The fall speakers have been taken care of but the group needs money for a spring speaker. Dollar summed up the discussion in his statement: "Give them the $100. We could haggle over this all night." His statement turned out to be a prophecy. The CCA's responsibility to present the convocations was questioned. Paul Latta asked, "How can the administration require us to attend these convocations and then expect us to pay for the speaker." The CCA did not get the money.

The mighty financial wizards placed the handwriting on the wall for organizations. Private banquets, a thorn in the thumb of the exec board all year, were brought under consideration. The final decision eliminated all private banquets which were paid for by student funds except other than the annual SGA Executive Board Awards banquet.

Homecoming Queen elections were scheduled for Nov. 6 and 7. Several requests were made including inquiries into the clock situation, plans for Hardy Alumni Hall, and invitations for commencement.

Revised Clause Defines Quorum

By JOYCE COPELAND

The Day Students received official approval of their constitution during last week's Executive Board session. The approval was the climax of a long struggle to mold the day students into workable organization.

There was some confusion in the past as to the qualifications of being a day student.

Fraternity members and students living in approved off-campus housing were uncertain as to their status.

The new constitution eliminated this problem. Day students are defined as students who do not reside in college-owned housing. Thus frat members and students in college approved housing are day students.

The new constitution defines a quorum as 1-25 of the membership. The members of the organization number approximately 700; therefore, about 28 people constitute a voting assembly.

Psychology Club Sponsors Visits

During the second meeting of the semester for the Psychology Club, visits and tours were planned of several mental institutions, particularly a trip to the institute at Butner, which has been scheduled for this semester.

Other trips, planned for the spring break, include three-day visits to the School of Social Work at Richmond Professional Institute; St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Washington, D. C.; and the National Institution of Mental Health in Bethesda, Md.

The club also adopted plans for a tutoring service for area high school students under the direction of Mrs. Emily Dickson.
