

High Point Game Inspires Board Anyone Who Can't Come Doesn't Deserve To Vote

By LYNN JOHNSON
"Anyone who can't come over to Hines (Classroom Building) to vote, doesn't deserve to vote," stated Kay Watson at the Tuesday SGA meeting. Despite this attitude on the part of some members of the Executive Board, students will be able to vote in the Student Center for their choice of SGA officers. The motion, as presented by Paul Latta, requested that this year an additional ballot box be set up in the Student Center for the convenience of those students who have few classes in Hines. Latta stated that he believed that this action would increase the turn-out for the election, which has fallen to new lows in recent years.

Objections were immediately raised by Eddie Capel and Al Cooke. Capel said that as chairman of the elections committee, he would have to protest because his committee was finding it hard to get students to man the polls. Cooke's objection was that if balloting were held in the Student Center, there could be no campaigning in the building, as election rules stated that there could be no campaigning within 50 feet of the polls. This objection was discarded during a five-minute recess when it was pointed out that this rule also applied to the entirety of the Hines Building. Back in business once more, Capel introduced an amendment stating that there would be no campaigning allowed in the lobbies of Hines Classroom Building or the Student Center on the days of the election. This motion was passed.

freshmen, also came under fire from the Executive Board. In a motion presented by Jim Abbott, it was suggested that elimination of cars for freshmen would serve not only to help alleviate the parking problem on the campus, but would also give the freshmen an entire year to concentrate on the challenges of college life without the distraction of a car. This motion was amended by Al Cooke to include any student who does not have a 2.0 average. The motion was defeated by an 8-5 vote after Dean Bennett pointed out that while it sounded good, it would be almost impossible to enforce (and lamented that the enforcement would fall on his office). He also stated that there were already enough rules in the book that were unenforceable without passing more. He suggested instead that a student committee be appointed to study

In action Tuesday night, the Executive Board of the Student Government passed a motion that a letter be written to the student body and administration of High Point College apologizing for the actions of ACC students and fans at the High Point-ACC game on Feb. 12.

The statement, presented by Kay Watson and admittedly co-authored by SGA President Byron Wyndham, read as follows:

"Whereas in the past Atlantic Christian College has always tried to maintain high standards of sportsmanship among students, coaching staff, and players at all athletic events, and

Whereas such behavior was not evident the night of February 12, 1969 during the High Point-ACC basketball game

We, the members of the Executive Board of the SGA do hereby resolve that such actions are a discredit to the school, student body, and faculty, and we, as representatives of our students are shocked and humiliated that such actions were prevalent within our college community."

Copies of the statement are also to be sent to the High Point newspaper.

In discussion of the motion,

Carraway Is Named All-Conference Man

By BILLY DIXON

Ed Carraway, a senior guard on Atlantic Christian College's basketball team, has been chosen for the second straight year as a member of the All-Carolinas Conference Basketball Team, conference officials announced Monday.

The five-foot-11 Carraway, who played most of the season with an injured knee, joins the eleven-man team headed by unanimous choice Gene Littles of High Point College.

Clyde Stallsmith, a senior front-line man for the Bulldogs, was named as one of eight honorable mention picks.

Carraway, in spite of missing nine games this season, rolled up a 19.9 scoring average and holds the ACC career record with an over-all average of 18.8 points a game. Carraway also holds the school record for most free throws in a single game with 18 and for most career free throws with 478.

Dubbed the "Rat" by his teammates, Carraway led the Bulldogs in free throw percentage this season, hitting on 113 of 143 attempts for 79 per cent. He also hit 133 of 261 field goal attempts for 51 per cent and totaled 379 points for the year.

Carraway, who has great speed and tremendous moves under the basket, was an All-NAIA District 26 performer last season and was voted ACC's Most Outstanding athlete Award for 1968.

The 28-year-old Stallsmith set four all-time ACC records this season: for most points in one season (596), for most field goals in one season (238), for most free throws in one season (120), and for most career points (1,749).

PAPER INDUSTRY HITS BIG BOOM—Paper dresses are the latest fad in the fashion industry and ACC is not to be left behind. The generation gap merges as four of ACC's feminine representatives model the new styles now available in the Bookstore.
