To F-ball Lead

Day I's Roll

Quarterback Norbie Wilson and end Bob Johnston sparked a powerful Day Student I squad to a pair of close wins and an early lead in the standings as In-coming Football kicked off the first four days of its 1969 season at Atlantic Christian on the ACC Athletic Field. Wilson gave Day I the lead on Wednesday when he ran for the first touchdown in a vital 6-2 win over 1968 champion Sigma Phi Epsilon. The junior signal caller had earlier passed to Johnston for two scores in a 12-7 squesker over Sigma Pi in an opening-day game on Wednesday.

Waters I, behind quarterback Mickey Otley, edged into second place with a first-game 12-0 win over Alpha Sigma Phi on Monday. Otley passed for one score and ran for one to pace the win.

Hackney II, meanwhile, saved its undefeated status and moved into third place with a 6-6 tie with winless Waters II on Tuesday. Halfback Robert Harris ran for Hackney II's only score and David Hicks took a pass for Waters II's lone tally.

Who Is At Fault?

If the cause of public recreation on private college campuses (specifically, the ACC campus) ever needed a scapegoat, the ACC Phys Ed Department wouldn't serve too well.

The public could desire, even expect, some use of ACC's recreational facilities (specifically, the two campus gyms). But, the public could never blame ACC for the appalling lack of public recreational facilities that has driven larger groups of Wilsonians to an enforced and frustrating dormancy on almost every winter weekend of the

The Wilson Recreation Department, long the promoter of stupid, discriminatory policies that shortchange taxpayers at every turn, has enforced that dormancy by denying the public the right to use public facilities.

The Atlantic Christian Phys Ed Department, on the other hand, has admirably served the ACC students and, on occasion, the public. Moreover, all but one member of the department (as was revealed in interviews with this reporter) are open to new ideas and often proposed
