Together For ACC

The sixty-ninth session has arrived amidst the confusion completing a new dorm, greeting new and old faces, and learning to adjust to MORE PEOPLE. If you do not believe the enrollment has increased then you merely have to try to eat in the cafeteria some evening.

The opening of a new school year always provides the opportunity to constantly evaluate and improve the academic and social community. Never before in the history of Atlantic Christian College has the atmosphere for change been so promising. (witness the convocation attendance revision). This was an important lesson in what cooperative effort can yield.

It is sincere heart that I take this opportunity to invite you, the student body, the faculty and administration to continue on this cooperative vein in an effort to improve ACC. The common interest can be served only through mutual concern.

There are times when the student-faculty-administrative factions cannot be of similar orientation (take the alcohol bell as a case in point). This is understandable, for where there is room for opinion there is also room for dissent. Dissent is a natural human trait and is often the foundation for meaningful progress.

This year, let us make ACC synonymous with the word, "Progress."

Letters Welcome

The Collegiate is the paper of the Atlantic Christian College student body. It is not only a source of information for the student but it is also sounding board for his ideas.

The editorial page of the Collegiate is open to student, faculty, and administration. Letters to the editor or guest editorials are always welcome.

This paper must, however, follow a legitimate policy for the publication of such material. I would like to enumerate the requirements for publication:

1. Letters should not run over 150-200 words. Guest Editorials may be considerably longer according to amount of space available.
2. Letters and editorials must be signed. Unsigned letters will not be considered.
3. Material should be in my hands by 7:00 p.m. Tuesday night if handwritten or by 8:00 p.m. typed. Send articles to box 5308 or drop them by the Collegiate Office.
4. Use a double-space line in typing. A 60-space line should be used also.
5. Avoid unfair or prejudice remarks against the character of another person or institution. Remember, libel laws do apply in such cases.
6. The Collegiate is not a battlefield for personal feuds.
7. Letters will be published (if written according to rules) whenever space is available.
8. Remember, publication of the letter is left to the discretion of the editor.

Announcements and other articles follow the same typing requirements and deadlines as letters. Use the Collegiate, it's your voice too.

Thirty Years Past

Miss Ava Gardner, a former Atlantic Christian College Commercial student, has this past summer achieved the goal strived for by many an American girl — that of a movie career. Leaving Wilson a few months ago, she is now enrolled in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios training school for new actresses. It is understood that at the end of her few months training, this glamor girl at 18 will be ready for actual screen work...Those who remember Ava will have no trouble remembering her unique and pleasing personality. No matter when she was seen or in whose company she was in, there was always an air of pleasantness about her. Soon she will be seen on the silver screen. Her natural wavy, medium brown hair, her green eyes that seem to haunt you together with her graceful slender figure will make such a striking picture that you will be proud to say "We were school mates together." Rumor has it on the campus that Miss Gardner has already received a hearty welcome into the social life of Hollywood. She has on several occasions lunched with Mickey Rooney, been to several parties with other famous movie celebrities, and taken in the most famous historical spots — such as the Golden Gate of San Francisco.
