Phi Mu and Alpha Sigma Phi carried home the $25 prizes for the sorority and fraternity divisions as the 1970 Telephone Fund-Raising Campaign netted $17,157 in total pledges.

The campaign ran Nov. 9-20 in an effort to raise funds for the completion of the brick walkway between Case Art Building and the Student Center. The money will also be applied to pay for landscaping the New Women's Dorm.

Each fraternity and sorority competed for the prize money as their members manned the telephones soliciting pledges from ASC alumni around the world. A taped message from Dr. Arthur Wenger accompanied the request for donations.

The tally of pledges for each organization was: Phi Mu, $4,270; Delta Zeta, $3,260 and Tri-Sigma, $767.

Inte fraternity division; Alpha Sigma Phi netted $2,600; Sigma Pi, $1,145; Sigma Phi Epsilon, $663; and Delta Sigma Phi, $10.

The projected goal for this campaign was $25,000. Alumni Director, Bill Smith, estimated the total figures would probably reach $18-20,000. This estimated was based on the assumption that more money will be pledged by the 1500-2000 alumni who were not reached during the enterprise. Smith also projected receipt of donations from about five per cent of those not pledging upon solicitation by mail.

Expenses for the campaign ran around $4,000. Smith, commenting on this figure, said, "I'll spend $4,000 for $17,000 any day." He extended his sincere appreciation to all the groups and individuals participating in the year's campaign.

Plays

Stage and Script of Atlantic Christian College will present three one-act plays, set for Wednesday and Friday nights, Dec. 9, and 11, in Howard Chapel on the college campus. Curtain time for the performances is 8 p.m.

The plays are student directed and each presents a very modern and at times avant-garde view of contemporary life.

"Winners," by Brian Fiel, presents a sensitive and charming dialogue between lovers who will soon graduate from high school and marry. Their simple planning for the future is contrasted sharply with the story of what the future really holds for them as presented by two commentators. Appearing in the play, under the direction of Steve Hunt, are Gwynn Doughty, Jim Abbott and Kathy Hartenstine.

"Bringing It All Back Home," by Terrence McNally, will be the second play presented. The play takes a sharp look at hypocrisy in the American home. The play

Everyone has the problem of what to give that special loved one for Christmas. Why not give her or him an original something such as a beautiful painting of sculpture. the last Coffee House, held November 19, range between 300-450. Charlie Haynes and Beth Whitley, also to appear this week, were among those who provided periodic entertainment. Also included in this week's spots of entertainment are Diane Bishop and Sandy Huggins and her group. The entertainment will appear every hour on the hour for 15 minute intervals.

The Coffee House is open to all students to come and rap about problems or to just talk. Susan Jaquith, C.A.A. president, urges all students to gather for relaxation, discussion and discovery through the sharing of ideas and talents.

begins to become painful when none of four members of family can remember Jimmy, the older son who has died in Viet Nam. Diane Tait directs Rick Eichenlaub, Debbie Benton, Lee Bean, Marvin Winstead and Jane Finch.

The final play of the evening will be a modern telling of the Jason-Medea legend. Directed by Mike Raper, "The Golden Fleece," was written by A.R. Gurney, Jr., who explores and nearly explodes the foundations of a marriage. Barbara Edmunds and Paul Crouch will combine their talents to help round out a fine evening of theatrical entertainment.

No admission will be charged.

Dec. 10, at 8 p.m., in the lobby of Hines Hall on the college campus. Proceeds from the auction will be used to underwrite "Crucible," a non-profit literary magazine published jointly by the Departments of Art and English at the college.

As in past years, works to be auctioned will consist of paintings, drawings, graphic works, sculpture, ceramics and other types of art forms representing a wide variety of media. Items to be auctioned will be on display in the lobby of Hines Hall prior to the auction.

"Crucible," is in its seventh year of publication. A highly respected literary magazine, "Crucible" has been awarded three grants from the North Carolina Arts Council which supplement the costs incurred by its production. For the most part "Crucible" is dependent upon contributions from the college and proceeds from auction.

Exec Board Meets

By JIM ABBOTT

The SGA Executive Board has met twice since the last publication of the Collegiate. At the meeting held on Nov. 23, President Joe Harwood appointed a commission headed by Patty Wilkerson, senior class senator, and charged it with the task of revising election procedures. Other commission members were, Kinney Hart, Beverly Williams, Lin Breece, Bob Moore, Jim Reaser, and Dean Whitehurst.

Mahlon Aycock, SGA treasurer, proposed that the board adopt the revised Zero Population Growth budget. A lengthy discussion followed. Joyce Copeland, Collegiate editor, said that ZPG is a political organization and that membership is not an automatic result of being enrolled as a student here as SGA and CCA membership is. Louise Dupree, a spokesman for the ZPG organization, pointed out that the program to combat the pollution and degradation of our environment begins on campus. Jay Barker, freshman president, observed that if ZPG is a state and federal organization, the it should be funded as such by the state and federal governments.

Ed Harris, junior class president, moved that the vote on the ZPG issue, be conducted via secret ballot. A secret ballot vote was held and the ZPG budget was defeated, 9 to 1.

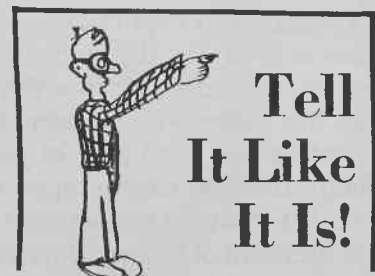

At the Dec. 7, meeting of the board, Harwood, in his president's report, urged student leaders to attend a seminar on birth defects to be held this Saturday on campus from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Harwood also asked if any organizations would like to help raise money for the Easter Seal campaign.

Patty Wilkerson presented the findings recommendations of her study group regarding voting procedures. One of the proposals was that voting be conducted in the dorms for perhaps an hour one night during elections.

Robbie Steen, sophomore president, warned that there may be students campaigning the dorm while balloting is taking place. Harwood responded saying that, "theoretically, your not going to stop all the campaigning around the polls." IFC president, Lin Breece suggested that the board table the proposals and recommendations until the next meeting.

In response to a question from Steen, Treasurer Mahlon Aycock, stated that the recent dance sponsored by the SGA was a financial failure. Dean Whitehurst suggested that the board consider sending representatives to certain meetings that would enable ACC to participate in group bookings of well known recording groups. Jim Reaser, a member of the Entertainment Committee responded negatively to this suggestion.

Lin Breece read a motion stating that students and board members who will be offering motions to the Executive Board should turn a copy of their motion into the SGA office by 3 p.m. on day of the board meeting. Harwood asserted that, "the idea behind this motion is so that officers, particularly myself, won't be floored by motions which are brought up." He went on to assure the board that this motion is not aimed at closing the floor to motions. Harris, in concurring with the motion said that it would give the representatives time to, "feel out the feelings of their constituents" on issues to be discussed by the Board. The motion passed.

Tell
It Like
It Is!

In a recent issue of Life Magazine there was an article on co-ed living on the college campus. The pros and cons were pointed out. "Would you like to have a co-ed housing in your college?" was the question answered in this week's edition of Tell It Like It Is.

W.D.T., sophomore male: It makes no difference to me. I could live with it or without it. There are the weekends to "co-ed" it.

S.L.A., senior female: No, because I don't see any sense in it. Most people think co-ed dorms are freer, but they really aren't. It is not what people think it is.

Y.G.F., senior Female: No, to me a dorm is a place where you can run around comfortably with or without proper attire and in a co-ed dorm you can not do this.

F.M.H., junior male: Yes, but only for juniors and seniors with a 2.0.

G.M.T., freshman male: Yes, because poeple would be together more. There is a lot to
