

"The conflict between different approaches to the liberty of man and mind or between views of human dignity and the right of the individual is continuous. The dividing line goes within ourselves, within our own peoples and also within other nations. It does not coincide with any political or geographical boundries.

The ultimate fight is one between the humans and the sub-human. We are on dangerous ground if we believe that any individual, any nation or any ideology has a monopoly on rightness, liberty and human dignity."

Pledge Steals Dean's Wreath

A pledge of the Sigma Pi fraternity admitted recently that he stole two Christmas wreaths Sunday night from the doors of some local residents. One of the wreaths happened to be taken from the door of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Swindell Jr., dean of Atlantic Christian College.

The Swindells were informed late Monday night that a wreath of similar description to the one stolen from their door was adorning the door of the Sigma Pi fraternity house. Dr. Swindell, accompanied by his wife and Dean Zeb Whitehurst went to the Pi house where Mrs. Swindell identified the wreath as being the one she had made. Whitehurst and Swindell then confronted the members of the fraternity at which time the pledge admitted that he had taken the wreaths. (The other wreath was taken from the home of a sister of one of the ACC trustees.)

The pledge, who returned the two wreaths, is now awaiting discipline action from either the College Discipline Committee or the local law enforcement authorities.

Draft Director To Reevaluate Regulations

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Selective Service System today formally issued most of the regulation changes proposed to the public last month, but withheld several key sections for further review. The new regulations which implement the recent amendments to the draft law were first published in proposed form in the Federal Register of November 3, 4, and 5.

Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr said that he has decided to reevaluate in their entirety those provisions which deal with the procedures for appearances before local boards, the guidelines governing re-opening of classifications, and the procedures for appeals to appeal boards other than the Presidential appeal board (section 1625.2 and parts 1624 and 1626 of the proposed regulations published on November 3).

Public response to the proposed regulations focused on several issues contained in the sections being withheld. "The depth of thought that went into the suggestions we received from the general public and

Dormitory Incident Coed Is 'Grabbed'

In recent days there has been a series of incidents involving prowlers in the girls dorms on campus according to Dr. Sarah B. Ward, dean of women at Atlantic Christian College. In an interview with a Collegiate reporter, Dr. Ward revealed that:

Friday, Dec. 10 about 1 a.m. a girl in Hiley Hall reported that she saw a prowler in the lobby. The girl said the boy had on an Atlantic Christian College jacket and told the girl he wanted food and then fled the building. According to Dr. Ward an investigation is taking place to identify the youth.

Police are also investigating a report that an Atlantic Christian College coed was "grabbed by two students from Wayne Community College when they entered the first floor of the new girl's dormitory at Deans and Lee streets Monday night.

According to the report, Julia Parrish said four male students from the Goldsboro area arrived at the dormitory about 9:30 p.m., and two entered the dormitory where they grabbed Cornelia Jones. They then ran out the building, she reported.

Police said the male students were confronted outside the dormitory by a school staff member and that an argument began but the Wayne students apparently left before police arrived.

Miss Parrish told officers the young men could be identified. There were no further details.

Congress Faces Hectic Session

WASHINGTON (WCNS) — Fifteen thousand bills and 320 days after it convened, the 92nd Congress's first session comes to a close with much still to be done on President Nixon's "New American Revolution" programs outlined last January in his State of the Union Address.

Congress will return next month and continue to debate these and new proposals in its second session. What is in store for political year 1971?

January: Congress will return about the middle of the month — probably Tuesday the 18th — and hear the President's third State of the Union Address. The fiscal 1973 budget will follow, and probably top 1972's $229 billion figure.

February will bring another

SGA Committee Changes

The SGA Executive Board met Monday night for twelve minutes to discuss significant campus issues.

At the outset of the meeting president Baucom announced that Lee Parker would replace Debbie Hayman as chairman of the Campus Awareness Committee. Baucom said he was making the change because he sees Parker more during the day than he sees Hayman.

Baucom also announced that Beth Whitely and Harvey Davis will be co-chairmen of the Entertainment committee next semester.

Dean Whitehurst opened for discussion the topic of campus parking. Various ideas were discussed such as selling parking stickers, having students rent parking spaces etc.

B. C. Franklin announced that there will be a meeting of the student body Jan. 4 to discuss the revised SGA constitution and that voting on the constitution will take place Jan. 11.

Baucom closed the meeting reminding students that they will be able to pick up their copy of the newly printed Student Handbook this week before vacation and when we return.

message from President Nixon on the environment and foreign policy. Lincoln's birthday is the 12th, and on Washington's "new" birthday, the 21st, the President will be in Peking conferring with Chinese leaders.

The campaign season meets the snows of New Hampshire in the nation's first presidential primary on March 7. Florida's follows the next week and Illinois' the week after.

April will see an Easter recess mixed in with presidential primaries in Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania. Earth Week starts on the 17th.

Ten states, including Indiana and Ohio, go to the polls during May and six more — including California and New Jersey — in June, wrapping up the slate of 23 presidential primaries before the conventions. President Nixon, in the meantime, will have traveled to Moscow for a summit meeting with Russian leaders in late May.

Democrats go to Miami on July 9 to nominate their candidates, while Congress goes into recess and likely fails to pass all the appropriation bills for the new fiscal year.
