Cafeteria Service Promotes Fellowship

It is often said that there is nothing to do on campus. That situation is now being remedied. On Wednesday from 8-11 p.m. in the cafeteria, all students are invited to enjoy soft drinks and have a good time.

There is no entertainment provided, but students are encouraged to bring their own. This free service is provided to encourage fellowship among students, faculty and staff. Steve Cummings, director of Dining Services, explained that President Harold Doster and all departments on campus are committed to increasing the sense of college community at ACC.

Chips and other snacks will be provided at a later date and a Make-Your-Own-Sundae Night is also under consideration. Cummings welcomes all comments and criticism concerning cafeteria affairs.

CCA Sponsors Concert

By Jayne Peacock

God's Way Band, featuring 10 very talented Christian musicians from the Raleigh area, performed by the fountain Saturday night. The band was super and the picnic was really great! Special thanks go to Steve Cummings and the American Restaurant Association cafeteria workers for making the picnic so successful.

Campus Christian Association (CCA), which sponsored the concert, is the umbrella organization for all Christian activities that take place on campus. We hope to be sponsoring more concerts like this one throughout the year. Also, we will be sponsoring other activities such as a coffeehouse on Sept. 29 in Hardy Alumni Hall. Any students interested in performing at the coffeehouse should sign up with one of the CCA officers. This year's officers are: Jayne Peacock, president; Lynda Lamm, vice president; Donna Bass, secretary; and Laura Medders, treasurer.

We hope that all students will get involved with the CCA activities because through payment of dormitory fees, you are all members of the association.

Course Offers British Cultural Experience

SEP 02
CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

By Lisa Boykin

The Theatre in Britain course to be conducted in London and Stratford-upon-Avon offers not only a chance to study English Theatre, but also an opportunity to experience a different culture from one's own and to visit many historic landmarks and the English countryside.

"Much of our theatrical heritage comes from England," said Paul Crouch, an instructor for the course. "This gives us the opportunity of seeing English theatre done by English actors, and in many ways it is different from American theatre; the style and responses to the plays differ."

Crouch will conduct the lecture/discussions on the plays in London. The class will discuss the play prior to seeing it. "This will be the time when I can say 'This is what you should look for,'" Crouch said. The London plays have not been chosen yet, but possibilities include "Amadeus," "Educating Rita," "Pal Joey," "Present Laughter" and "Evita," according to Crouch.

In addition to the theatrical part of the course Crouch emphasized the importance of the cultural experience. "It's an encounter with a different culture than our own," he said.

"We'll have to drive on the left hand side of the road and learn to deal in English money."

Crouch also said that he is looking forward to "getting out of the city and seeing the countryside; there are wonderful sightseeing and out of town trips planned to Stonehenge, Trafalgar and Cotswald," he said.

Once the group has arrived in London, they will rent a van and be on their own, Crouch said. Since they will not be with a tour group, they will be able to sight see at their own pace and leisure, which is a real advantage.

The course will run from Dec. 28 until Jan 15 in London and Stratford. Those students in the class will receive three semester hours credit. The total cost is $1295. This price includes tuition, air transportation, food and lodging, most surface transportation, admission and theatre tickets, plus administrative costs.

In addition to Dr. Crouch, Dr. F. Mark Davis, academic dean, and Dr. Greg Hastings, chairman of the Education Department, will be instructors. If you are interested in registering for the course, contact one of the instructors by Oct. 15.

On behalf of the City Council, the City, and all of its employees, may I extend a "warm welcome" to the student body and faculty at the beginning of their year. We feel, with our modern shopping facilities, restaurants and specialty shops, our City can satisfactorily fill your shopping needs.

Feel free to call on us should you need any information or assistance regarding our City or any of its services.

Our wish for you is a very successful academic year and many pleasant memories.

Sincerely,

Ralph El Ramey
