

Members of the dance production class perform to the tune of "Be Strong." The class is under the instruction of Mrs. Chivers. The group presented a vesper service on Jan. 16. Favorite hymns and pieces of religious music were choreographed by students, while others performed. The class is composed of physical education majors and minors, primarily. This was the group's first public appearance.

TRIBUTE PAID TO DAVID D. JONES IN VESPER SERVICE

The David Dallas Jones Service of Remembrance was held on Sunday, January 13, at four p.m. with Dr. Chauncey Winston presiding. The Old Testament Lesson was read by a senior, Miss Alice Airall. The service was enhanced by the lovely music of the Bennett College Choir. The Rev. John G. Corry said a prayer in which he gave special thanks for the life of Dr. Jones, what Bennett College meant to him and most important what he meant to Bennett College. A wish was expressed for the present administrator and Divine blessings were implored for her continued strength and success.

Mrs. Geraldine A. Totten, of the class of 1937, paid special tribute to Dr. David Jones as she related her memories of him during her college days. Throughout her message were found evidences of the great influence that Dr. Jones had on the life of every Bennett Girl.

A bit of Dr. Jones' philosophy was expressed in the thought that "it is not what an experience is that matters but how you face it that is important". She left the audience with thoughts of a stairway and a cross as symbols of the spiritual immortality of David Dallas Jones.

The message was delivered by Dr. Howard Thurman, Dean of Marsh Chapel, Boston University; noted orator and theologian who has been a friend of the Jones family for years and enjoyed a close relationship with our late president. Dr. Thurman began his very eloquent message with a passage expressing the human need for a firm grip on something, the desire to have moorings and to be accountable to someone. Dr. Jones' life was anchored in and dedicated to Bennett College. His name meant something in the "streets of minds".

Dr. Thurman posed three very pertinent questions which life raises for everyone. They were: who are you? what do you want? and how do you propose to get it? We must become who we think we are, be sure of what we want and attempt to get what we want in such a manner as not to use anyone for our own selfish gains. Dr. Thurman said that the significance of one's life can be summarized in the manner these questions are answered.

The entire spirit of the service made those of us who did not have the opportunity of knowing Dr. Jones feel that we had truly missed a great experience.

Recital Given By Whiteman

An organ recital, "Contemporary Organ Literature from the Church" was given by Clarence E. Whiteman, Bennett College organist, Sunday, January 20, at 4 p.m. in Pfeiffer Chapel.

This program which replaced the usual vesper service included five numbers which were performed for the first time in Greensboro. None of the music dated back further than 1934 and three of the numbers were composed only last year.

The organist opened with "Dithyramb," a 1960 composition by Alec Wyton and each of the nine numbers that followed was by a different composer. Among them was "Fastasie over het lied 'heilig, heilig, heilig'" by Piet Post; "On An Ancient Alleluia" by Robert Bitgood; "Partita over een Ligden-skoraal," by Piet Rippen and "Partita over Psalm 106," by Gor Kee, all being performed here for the first time.

dining area at the dinner hour. The noise problem was also mentioned.

The Board expressed sorrow for having to take this action, "but a lack of maturity on our part and failure to respect one another seems to have made it necessary." A hope that this number system will not be in operation long was expressed.

STAFF OPENS

Membership on the Banner staff is open to all students who wish to join. We are interested in persons willing to work in any of the six departments, advertising, circulation, reporting, business, typing, and exchanges.

Interested persons should see Barbar Whitfield or Sheila Brinkley, editors, in person or a note may also be dropped in the campus mail for these persons. They will contact and interview persons.

We know that much talent is lying dormant on Bennett's campus. Join with us in using your talent in a manner beneficial to all the community.

FORMER PRESIDENT GAINS POSITION WITH ORGANIZATION

FANCIES FOLLOW FADS AT B. C.

Introducing folks, the latest in fashions, fads, and dances around B.C. The B.C. girls, this year, through correspondence with college students throughout the country, have come up with some pretty exciting new ideas.

Have you heard of the new dance, "The Drive"? It's really spreading fast (It doesn't require a license either). I'm sure we've all hit some "wobble" line by now. The Reynolds Hall gang is just dying for you to meet their "Uncle Willie" (a new dance craze that really swings). Everyone is going "Monkey" lately. (You'd better stop it. You might get sent to Mars on the next space vehicle.)

What's new in your wardrobe this year? Do you have the semi-flared skirt? If not, get one at your nearest convenience. They're really great when you don't exactly want to wear a flared skirt nor a straight one. The wrap-around is especially popular. They save the bother of "pulling over" or stepping in."

The padded sweaters and blouses that come floating on our campus with the returnees from the holidays are really spreading, giving that "mended" but "unmended" look at the elbows. Has Dr. Ben Casey lost his popularity in blouse or is he just resung for a while?

What's this, girls? One look reveals another semi-flared skirt, then — look again — and they're culottes!

Could this be a wild west show? It looks that way from the sight of those high-style boots.

Fads and Fashions will always be with us. They're all a part of everyday campus life. Before we've seen one — there's another.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Miss Roslyn V. Cheagle of Lynchburg, Virginia, has been named Youth Organizer for the National Council of Negro Women. The appointment was announced by Miss Dorothy I. Height, National President, following the Council's annual meeting held recently at the Statler-Hilton Hotel.

Miss Cheagle, a former field secretary for the NAACP, is a graduate of Bennett College, where she majored in history. Elected to "Who's Who in American Colleges," she was active in sit-in and movie demonstrations and plans to pursue further education in the field of law. While at Bennett, Miss Cheagle was an exchange student to Mt. Holyoke College in South Hadley, Massachusetts, a member of Sigma Rho Sigma (Social Science Honor Society), president of the Student government and the Young Women's Christian Association.

As a student representative to the Homemaking Institute Committee, she was among those who initiated a successful voter registration campaign in Greensboro, North Carolina. Miss Cheagle represented Bennett College at the Regional and National Meetings of the NCNW and served as State President of the youth councils and college chapters of the NAACP.

Working from the national headquarters in this newly created position, Miss Cheagle will spearhead the Council's new and intensive approach to strengthening community services and developing young adult leadership. Since its founding in 1935 by Mary McLeod Bethune, NCNW has been actively concerned with the increasing opportunities with and for youth.

chapel program. The theme for this year's Homemaking Institute was announced. It is "The Individual's Search for Identity." The Institute will take place during the second week in March.

During the program, Mr. Charles Garth reviewed some of the reference books which will be available in Holgate Library. A list of these was passed to students following the program.

Mrs. Streat noted that some pre-Institute activities have already taken place. They include the presentation of speakers on the theme. She noted that during Institute week, various culminating activities will take place. The subject will be pin-pointed by experts in the field.

ALABAMA COURT UPHOLDS RIGHT TO PARTICIPATE IN SIT-INS

A little over a year ago, the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals announced its opinion in the case of Alabama State Board of Education, et al., versus St. John Dixon, et al. This decision appears to be a major milestone in an extended effort to protect minimal student rights with the power of our courts. This decision shattered a good many legal precedents and a greater amount of administrative complacency.

Briefly, the court held in his case that nine students at Alabama State College could not be expelled from that school for participating in a sit-in demonstration unless first provided a formal disciplinary hearing and unless their rights to due process were observed. The opinion of the court even provided an outline definition of what due process means within an academic institution.

The state of Alabama appealed this decision to the U. S. Supreme Court, but that court denied certiorari, and so the Dixon decision holds. It should be understood that by refusing to grant certiorari, the Supreme Court did not thereby endorse the Dixon decision; it merely refused to review it. However, there appears to be no danger that the Dixon precedent will be reversed.

This decision has been frequently referred to within the past year and has been the subject of a good deal of student discussion. However, it is not likely that very many students have had an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the contents of this decision.

BENNETT, TOO?

THINGS I REMEMBER: I remember the time when it was almost a sin for a young man to sponsor a girl. . . . Now it is an everyday practice. . . . The time when students went to the movies to watch the movies. . . . Now it is a lover's lane, which is o.k. in my book for the simple reason that the lovers on campus do not have any other place to express their feelings for each other.
