

A Picture Essay

The Camera "Stalks" Again

"You mean you don't have your library card?"

Let me write down those assignments. I haven't been to class in the last few weeks.

These Sophomores are trying to find their "Learning Tree."

The eye of the photographer once again catches the many changing faces of Bennett College. Students, teachers, parents and others are all in the action and all an intricate part of the Bennett life. The camera has peeked into group discussions, gossip sessions, teacher-student dialogues and other situations which are connected to the Bennett family. Most of the victims of the camera are caught unaware. So be prepared because you may be next.

Behind the camera is Dwight Davis, better known as "Ike". Ike is a student at N.C. A&T University, but he still finds the time to help his sister Bennett belles. Even though his ma-job is engineering physics, photography takes up much of his time. Between his studying, his job as chief photographer for the A&T Register and working for the Bennett public relations office, he has little time for anything else, except maybe a girlfriend. So, if a good looking young man approaches you with a camera, smile.

Now the learned learns from the learner.

Into the lives of many comes Mr. Gills, new Social Science instructor.
