WHO'S WEARING THE PANTS?

It takes only sunshine and a garden hose to keep a water baby happy. He'll romp through an active summer in this pair of sturdy knit trunks. Made of shrink-resistant wool yard, these feather-weight shorts are simple to make and as practical as can be for a little shaver's summer fun. They tie at the waist with a drawstring. Two or three pairs of these are practically a whole summer wardrobe! (NOTE—A direction leaflet for knitting WATER BABY'S KNIT TRUNKS, Leaflet No. 585, is available to you free at the Library.)

A Liquid Shampoo Keeps Hair-dos Trim While In Swimming

You don't have to look like a drip just because you go swimming, and the sponsors of a famous liquid shampoo proved it at a recent fashion show called "Hair-dos For Water Babies." Models wearing specially designed "aqua-coifs" literally dunked their heads in an improvised "ocean", to show that these coiffures could go swimming without becoming disarranged.

The idea behind the show was that the hairdos shown were ideal for the girl who has a date to go swimming, then dancing, without having time to re-do her hair between. They all fitted in with the accepted hair fashions of the day, and were as wearable away from water as in it. They were arranged of side buns, braids, French twists and curled puffs. Some of the styles shown were dressed up with ribbons made of plastic shower curtain material. After soaking their heads in the "ocean" to prove that their hairdos could take it, the girls changed from bathing suits to evening dresses, and replaced their plastic hair ribbons with taffeta. With their hair still wet, but not re-combed, they demonstrated to a large audience that they could be good sports, yet keep their glamour, too.

Though it is encouraging for us gals to know that glamour need not be a lost commodity just because we like to take to the water during the hot summer months, it is also well to realize that whenever possible, hair should be washed right after a swim, to remove the effects of salt, chemical, or just plain "ole swimmin'-hole" water. A liquid conditioning shampoo will restore hair cleanliness and sheen before you can say "dive", and make your hair soft and manageable as it was before your swim.

But if your swim date and large evening allow no time for a shampoo between, be glamorous for both occasions with a stay-put hairdo. With this aqua-coif, you can't help but be the belle of the beach and the queen of the dance floor.

AW, NUTS!

"Man overboard!" shouted the young sailor on his first voyage. Amid great confusion, the ship was stopped. The sailor stepped up to the captain, saluted, and said:

"I'm sorry, sir. I made a mistake when I said 'Man overboard.'"

"Thank God!" said the captain, signaling for full steam ahead.

"Yeah," said the sailor, "it was a dame."

Miss Burnette Is Bride Of Woodruff

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Burnette of Highlands have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gladys Burnette to William Woodruff, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Woodruff, of Alfred Station, N. Y., on Sunday, June 9.

The wedding was solemnized at the August Road Baptist church, Greenville, S. C., with the Rev. J. Alexander Herring officiating.

The bride wore a dress of white eyelet embroidery with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Mrs. Woodruff is a graduate of Highlands high school and of Brevard college, where she was a member of Alpha Phi Epsilon, honorary fraternity of business education. For the past three years she has been employed in the payroll department of Ecusta Paper corporation.

The bridegroom was educated at Alfred university, Alfred, N. Y. He served three and a half years with the army air forces in the African theatre. At the present time he is managing a milk plant at Rome, N. Y., where the couple will make their home.

The wedding guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Burnette, parents of the bride; Miss Louise Burnette, Robbinsville; Miss Virginia Burnette, Highlands; Misses Joyce and Joan Burnette, Highlands; Miss Bertha Edwards, Brevard; Mr. James Walden, Brevard; and Miss Felicia Edwards, Brevard.

HOT WEATHER IRONING TIPS

In July, when the days are hot, ironing is perhaps the most dreaded household chore; yet, ironing is a task that no woman, whether she is a housewife or a career girl, can entirely escape. But every woman can make this job easier. Granted—you can't iron without heat, but you can iron less, and iron with less heat. Here are a few suggestions:

You can begin to reduce ironing discomfort when you shop for your summer wardrobe. Keep in mind the fact that nylon, seersucker and rayon jersey are all good, comfortable summer fabrics, that they require very little ironing after they dry, you need not buy short petticoats to wear in heavier cottons. You'll cut down on area to iron. Also, remember that one-piece dresses have less surface to press. Avoid too many ruffles, pleats and other fussy details. If you must have them, save them for winter.

You'll be much more comfortable while ironing if you dress for the job. Wear low heels to make standing easier. Sit on a kitchen stool when you iron, if possible. It is important that you do not dampen fabrics too much and allow that you watch the temperature

Weds In Greenville

MISS GLADYS BURNETTE became the bride of William Woodruff, of Alfred, N. Y., Sunday, June 9th., in Greenville, S. C. She worked in the Main Office at Ecusta.

A Recent Bride

MRS. GOULD E. TINSLEY, was before her marriage, on April 21, in Clayton, Ga., Miss Estelle Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Johnson of Denton. Mr. Tinsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Tinsley, of Brevard, was discharged from army service several months ago. The couple now resides in Brevard. Mrs. Tinsley is employed in the Finishing department.

control of your iron to make sure that you are using just the right amount of heat. It is a good idea to iron fabrics that require a low temperature first, then to iron those requiring slightly more heat, and so on, or vice versa. Doing this eliminates the necessity of constantly changing the heat control and enables you to maintain a more even ironing temperature.

Also, don't forget to have an iced drink in the refrigerator—something cold to look forward to so that you can refresh yourself after work.

Don't let an unsafe act go unheeded.
