

addition to these prizes, winners in the various classifications received over $600 in cash.

Mr. and Mrs. Paxton took first place in the individual display for the second straight year and were awarded $15 cash and 1,500 points toward the sweepstakes prizes. The Cooks were second with $10 and 1,000 points; and the Loves were third with $5 and 500 points. The Paxtons also took home the quantity honors, with 92 entries out of a possible 97. The Cooks and Bowens tied for second place with 80 entries.

The Cooks took the Canned Fruits and Vegetables Division with 5,200 points and also the Fresh Fruits and Vegetables with 2,900 points. Mr. and Mrs. Ashworth placed first in the Flower division for the second straight year with 2,700 points.

Judges for the Festival were: Mr. Howard Clapp, superintendent of the Mountain Experimental Station, Waynesville; Mr. R. W. Shoffner, District Agent, N. C. State College; Mr. D. W.

Bennett, Henderson County Agent; Mr. F. W. Thode, Professor of Horticulture, Clemson College; Miss Anna C. Rowe, Asheville; Miss Mary E. Johnston, Jackson County Home Agent; Miss Helen Higdon, Henderson County Home Agent; and Miss Mary Davis Pou, Economist, Duke Power Company, Greenville, S. C.

In appreciation of their fine services, the judges were given a nice gift by the company at the final program.

SIDELIGHT

One of the many interesting sidelights of the Festival centered around a prize-winning jar of bread and butter pickles. Margaret Ann DeBord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace DeBord, is naturally not an experienced cook at her age, but she tried her hand with a jar of pickles. It was the first she had ever canned, and in true story-book fashion, the pickles took first place in that classification.

The cafeteria on Harvest Festival day is arrayed with beautiful flowers, appetizing canned goods, and other tempting things. Everyone enjoys the displays.

Below, a group of Endless Belt folks admires the prize-winning display of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Paxton.

