

ed back to the house with her suitor following, she heard a thud and the moo of the cow that was tethered nearby to graze, turning she found the young man of her choice sprawled in the dust, where he merely looked up and explained "I stumbled over something".

Now whether or not this applies to George's plight, I'm not sure, but George, take it from me, it wouldn't hurt to have your eyes examined once-in-a-while.

Congratulations to D. S. Orr. He recently won the prize for catching the largest brown trout.

By the way girls, I'm beginning to think you should be careful who sees you holding hands, returning from lunch. Why? Well, I guess its ok. But it seems to have affected Henry King somewhat. I'm sure I saw him on November 10, desperately trying to hold Shorty Galloway's hand on his way to the Cafeteria. Better watch yourself, Shorty.

David Sitton has received his discharge from the Army and returned to work here. "Welcome back, David."
