

More Faculty: A. L. Morley Is Next In Line

By Peggy Crompton

In this, our third article of introducing our faculty to you, we would like to present Mr. A. L. Morley. Mr. Morley was born in Buffalo, N. Y., attending the city schools of Buffalo until he moved to Williamsville, N. Y., where he graduated from Williamsville High School. He was the president of his senior class.

Mr. Morley is married and has two children, a daughter, Mrs. Billie Rose who lives in New York City and a son, Arthur, Jr., who is fourteen years old.

After graduation from high school, Mr. Morley worked two years as an electrician before going to college. He then attended Carnegie Tech where he received his B. S. degree as an electrical engineer.

JUST AFTER finishing college in 1917, he went into the Navy as an Electrician First Class in World War I.

After his career in the Navy, Mr. Morley went to Massachusetts Institute of Technology for post graduate work in electrical engineering and engineering administration.

He then worked for Stone & Webster as assistant electrical engineer. From there he went to Tampa, Fla., with the same company where he stayed approximately five years.

Mr. Morley first taught school at Morton High School and Junior College in Cicero, Illinois, during the depression. He taught electricity, shop math and engineering drawing for ten years.

MR. MORLEY worked for the Rural Electrification Administration for one year before Pearl Harbor. During the war he held various other war jobs. He worked at Oak Ridge, Tennessee for two years as building inspector for Tennessee Eastman Corporation.

Mr. Morley stated to this reporter that he does not have any split atoms at this time.

In 1938 Mr. Morley obtained his M. S. degree at Penn State. He came to Asheville-Biltmore on June 6th of 1947.

WHEN ASKED about his greatest ambition Mr. Morley replied,

Lack Of Ads Is Evident In The Crier

The advertising staff has been having difficulties in getting ads from the merchants of Asheville. Not being business men, we, nevertheless, think that these trades people are missing a good bet in advertising on the Campus Crier, and here's why:

The Campus Crier is distributed to the entire student body, as well as several hundred alumni and friends of the school. Unlike other colleges in this vicinity, virtually all the local stores are patronized by the students of A. B. C. who are residents of Asheville.

Merchants who ignore their opportunity to advertise in the Crier are forfeiting many opportunities to reach the customers and prospective customers among our subscribers. The merchants of this city have often demonstrated their good-will toward Asheville-Biltmore College, and we are sure they realize the good business of advertising in the Crier. We are certain we will have another demonstration of their cooperativeness.

"I would like to see all students at Asheville-Biltmore make A's or at least try to make A's." He also said that, "the counties in and around Asheville need a good four year college where education could be obtained at a reasonable price."

"Very wholesome," is the way Mr. Morley described the school spirit of the students. He said, "We have a mixture of students at A-B and I think the older students should set the right example for these younger students."

Mr. Morley has been talking to various of his classes and leaving with them the thought that their conduct should be such that in later years they will have no regrets.

Here And There On The Campus

Now is a good opportunity for students to show their school spirit by donating books and magazines to the library. A good many books have been donated by outsiders who are interested in the school's welfare. The list of donors includes: Mr. George Stephens, Mrs. Heien Moore, Mr. R. A. Tomberlin, and Mrs. Anne Tyndale Lee.

Money has been contributed to the library by the following: Miss Kathryn Kendall, the Jayettes, Mr. Owen F. Cobb, Mr. Moritz of the American Enka Corporation, and Mr. Strauss of the Ecusta Paper Corporation.

The A-B student body contributed $25 to the Needlework Guild. This is a slightly larger sum than was donated last year.

Our Christmas holidays will last from Dec. 19, to Jan. 5; rather than Jan. 4, as was announced by mistake in the last issue of the Campus Crier.

Everyone has been more prompt in returning books to the library since Miss Williams raised the fee to 5c per day for books overdue.

Our good friend Bart is coming up in the world. He was unanimously elected to the office of club critic—"El Critica"—at the last meeting of "Los Sabios," the Spanish club.

A bunch of kids from the Dramatics department presented a play at the Dramatics Institute at Lee Edwards on Nov. 25. They really deserve a big hand for their fine showmanship.

Britain is producing over 60,000 baby carriages a month and needs more.

Of, For And By The Vets

By Nickie Bonarrigo

Graduate students and advanced scholars may receive educational grants under the Fullbright Act even though they may qualify for benefits under the G.I. Bill. While the Fullbright Act is not yet in operation as far as students are concerned an agreement with China has already been reached and at least twenty other countries are expected to enter the foreign study program outlined under the act. Veterans of World War I and II are to be given preference in the selection of American students to receive educational grants under the Fullbright Act.

The American Legion's second annual national airpower conference, Feb. 5 to 7, 1948, will be a two-city event, opening at Dayton, Ohio, and closing in Indianapolis, Indiana.

IN AN EFFORT to speed up subsistence checks for college GIs, a representative of the V. A. will visit each school in which veterans are enrolled, sometime during the second week of each month. In each case where subsistence payments are overdue the representative will record the necessary identifying information and relay it immediately to the nearest regional office where the highest priority will be given the claim until the student receives his check.

THE ARMY TIMES "At Your Service" department has announced that veterans who are behind on income-tax are not in any danger of having their benefits attached to make up the deficit. Under an old law (38 U. S. Code, Sec. 454a) the V. A. may make deductions in matters under its jurisdiction, but the law does not permit other government agencies to attach benefits provided by the V. A.
