Adcock and Walters to Give Poetry Reading Here April 19

Two widely-published North Carolina poets and three UNC-A student poets will give a poetry reading on the UNC-A campus at 8 pm, Wednesday April 19, in the Apocalypse, the Student Center coffeehouse.

Also, the two visiting poets will discuss the writing of poetry from 2:00 to 3:00 on Wednesday afternoon in Room 104 in the Humanities Building.

Both events are sponsored by "Images," the student fine arts magazine, and are financed by UNC-A and the North Carolina Arts Council of Raleigh.

The two visiting poets are Betty Adcock and Thomas Walters, residents of Raleigh and associate editors of "Southern Poetry Review," and Raleigh-based magazine founded and edited by Guy Owen.

Lesley Cohen, editor of "Images," has announced that the student readers, selected from among the contributors to the Spring issue of the magazine, will be Susan Durham, Michael Hudson, and

Peacemeal, Inc. Good Food on a Co-op Basis

Peacemeal Inc. is a non-profit organization the purpose of which is to provide a buying service for its members. The main commodities which will be handled will be organic and health foods, although non-organic items and non-food items will also be carried.

Since this is being run as a service to the community, there will be a system of goods distribution which will attempt to share the major portion of the work load. This system includes the establishment of a local distributor whose function is to gather the orders and payments of from 5-10 co-op members in his area via the mail. He then compiles the orders and once a month, comes to a meeting of other local distributors to place the total order. When the order is received, he then picks up the goods for his group and arranges for their distribution. Thus is the work load shared.

The membership fee is three dollars per family or individual and will help to off-set the costs of incorporation and initial getting it together. Since these costs should not be duplicated, the membership may be considered to be perpetual. Through wholesale buying and virtually no overhead, there should be considerable savings for everyone.

If you are interested in membership simply drop a line to Peacemeal Inc. 167 Webb Cove Rd. Asheville, N. C. 28804 and please indicate whether you care to volunteer to be a local distributor.
