

"I think college students deserve free checking."

We Agree! The cost of an education is high enough without having to pay a service charge for something as necessary as a checking account. So at Northwestern, as long as you're a student, you'll never pay a service charge for checking. Because you deserve it.

(Dorr) We are working with admissions to develop a comprehensive recruiting plan, which is almost complete. We will also make a study of attrition to discover what causes students to drop out or to remain. For instance, we could use Sociology students to analyze this attrition... If one of the problems were bureaucracy, we could use the Management department to analyze the structure of our organization.

(RR) Do you foresee any restructuring within the university hierarchy?

(Dorr) We will look closely at the structure of departments and the role of the chair.

(RR) What are some other goals?

(Dorr) New and better housing is essential to the growth and development of UNC-A. This has to come out particularly in the search for a new Dean of Students.

LONG RANGE GOALS

(RR) What do you feel are UNC-A's long range goals?

(Dorr) Now would be a bit early to say. Things that come to mind are the Climatic Center and Forestry School. We must, over the years, diversify without diminishing our emphasis on liberal arts... Liberal arts are the real heart of this college.

AUDITIONS ANNOUNCED FOR THEATER UNC-A

Theatre UNC-Asheville will hold auditions for Anton Chekhov's drama "The Three Sisters" on Thursday, August 24 at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. in the Carol Belk Theatre. Auditions are open to all currently enrolled students and to UNC-A alumni.

Drama department chairman Arnold Wengrow announced that the production, which will open Theatre UNC-Asheville's ninth season, has roles for nine men and five women. Scenes from the play that will be used for the audition may be picked-up at the Carol Belk Theatre between 1:00 - 4:00 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday.
