

Kaleidoscope

Volume IV, Number X

Serving the Students of UNC-Asheville Since 1982

Thursday, March 29 1984

Voting explanation: Deborah Wilson gives John Falvo a briefing on new voting procedures in the Carmichael lobby Wednesday. Students now have the privacy of a "booth" in which to make their choices.

Photo by Pam Walker

Students electing new SGA officers today

By Anne Snuffer

Polls opened yesterday for student government elections, and voter turnout for the day was in the hundreds.

Tonight at approximately 9 p.m. Mike Haggarty, SGA elections commissioner, plans to post the winners in the Student Center.

But as of now, the elections are still going strong, as they have been all week.

Monday and Tuesday, above the noise of video games, a television, and students in the cafeteria, candidates for the SGA delivered lunch hour speeches in the Student Center.

Incumbent president Ken Cagle spoke of his accomplishments during 1983-84.

He said the SGA "has built a solid foundation" for students at UNCA.

He added that during his presidency "a new constitution was adopted, and a new judicial code was proposed."

He went on to say "I will stand for what you (the students) believe in."

Cagle added that his campaign "is built on (the) experience of three years in student government."

Also giving a speech

Continued on page 12

Student Center becoming Highsmith University Center in Sunday ceremony

Anna Paulette Witt

The UNCA Student Center will become the Chancellor William E. Highsmith University Center in a 4 p.m. outdoor ceremony on the center's plaza, said Dr. Alf Canon, director of university relations, Tuesday.

"We sent 3,000 invitations to this event honoring Chancellor and Mrs. Highsmith," Canon said.

The written invitations went to UNCA alumni, faculty, staff, trustees, former trustees, and to UNC President William Friday.

"Students are also invited and will be notified by campus flyers this week," Canon said.

Taking part in the ceremony are: Dr. James A Stewart, UNCA professor emeritus of philosophy; Dr. Jeff Rackham, chairman, department of literature and chairman, faculty senate; Gordon Greenwood of Black Mountain, representative to the North Carolina General Assembly, who was instrumental in Asheville-Biltmore College becoming part of the UNC system.

Also participating are: Betty Kdan, president of the UNCA Alumni Association; Ken

Continued on page 12

William E. Highsmith

Cool day coming for pool sharks

By Cathy James

Relief is on the way for Student Center pool players, video addicts, diners, and others who suffer from the center's stifling late summer heat.

After approximately two years with no air conditioning, students can enjoy the Student Center in comfort by '84 fall semester, said Sam Millar, plant engineer.

"The building was originally designed for air conditioning, but it had to be left out for lack of funds," said Millar.

The Board of Trustees, Board of Governors and the Advisory Budget Commission recently approved an $80,000 appropriation for the air conditioning.

"A design contract is being prepared and will

Continued on page 10

What's in a name?: The Student Center ...

Photo by Pam Walker