

Cagle appoints new officers

During the past two weeks two student government senators resigned, and student government declared Former Vice President Doug Miller ineligible to retain his office. To fill these vacancies, SGA President Ken Cagle appointed three new officers last week. They are (L-R) Cindy Rogers, vice-president pro tempore; Kathy Gardner, junior senator; and Pat Cabe, vice president. Welcoming the new officers is President Cagle.

Staff photo by Phil Ross

THE BLUE BANNER

Serving the students of the University of North Carolina Asheville since 1982

Volume V, Number XI

Wednesday, November 21, 1984

Strangers battle students

Brawl bloodies Highrise

By Penny Kramp

A student brawl stained the Highrise lobby with blood Sunday morning.

Five Asheville police squad cars dispersed a fight between a crowd of UNCA students and some unidentified off-campus men about 1:30 a.m.

The fight broke out after an after-game social in the student center.

"Some UNCA guys were walking back from the dance and 10 to 15 guys jumped them," said Melinda Graves, senior resident hall assistant.

Byron Samuels was one of the students who helped break up the disturbance.

Samuels said the first altercation began around midnight when one of the off-campus intruders shoved a girl, which upset some members of the Mud 500 club.

That scuffle was broken up by students and "everything appeared to cool down," according to Samuels.

"Then about 1 a.m. I saw a rush of people running to the Highrise. It was a free-for-all," Samuels said.

No arrests were made, according to Sgt. Richard Greene of the Asheville Police Department.

"When the officers arrived the fight was over. The officers told the students to disperse. No arrests were made because it was impossible to tell who was at fault," said Greene.

Samuels said the actual fight lasted about 20 minutes, but Graves said it took at least an hour to calm things down.

Several UNCA students received minor injuries, mostly in the way of "busted" noses and bruised knuckles.

One student, Calvin

"Cam" Mallotte, needed four stitches for an injury to his lip. Another female student began hyperventilating.

Students were not the only ones who were roughed up. A Domino Pizza delivery person had a pizza snatched as she attempted to deliver it to the Highrise.

Delivery person Stella Parker said, "I didn't realize anything was wrong until I got out of the delivery truck. Some guy came running up and slam-dunked the pizza on the ground. I ran after him and he began yelling at the other guys to get the pizza. Then they began yelling, 'Get the girl' so I locked myself in the truck."

Parker said the thief not only stole the pizza but also a $50 insulated case for the pizza.

Continued on page 8

Staff Photo by Sylvia Hawkins

THE UNBEATEN BULLDOGS' Jeff Jones (24) and Byron Samuels (40) try to stop the Pembroke attack on Monday.

SGA passes new alcohol resolutions

By Phil Ross

In response to widespread criticism of the new alcohol policy on campus, the SGA passed a series of resolutions designed to modify the existing policy at the SGA Senate meeting Nov. 15.

Rules committee chairperson Doug Griffin drafted four bills that deal with vague or "unenforceable" sections of the new alcohol policy.

According to Griffin, the administration passed the new rules during the summer, a period of limited student representation.

Neal Rhoades, SGA Attorney General, said that when the administration formulated the new alcohol policy, they invited student input but largely ignored the students' concerns.

"There was a lot of pressure for a new policy.

The input was appreciated but I don't know how effective it was," said Rhoades.

Keith Ray, director of student development, said fear played a large part in the administration's decision to change the policy.

"The more the administration allows in terms of alcohol consumption on campus," Ray said. "The more liable the university is in terms of students violating statutes relating to alcohol consumption."

Ray added that the uni-
Continued on page 8