Land purchase finalized, Campus grows by 62 acres

By David Proffitt

The UNCA campus is now 62 acres larger with the official closing of a land purchase Tuesday afternoon.

"We have finalized the deal," said B. Paul Goodman, who sold the land to the state for $1 million, or about $16,130 an acre.

The additional acreage brings UNCA's total to 262 acres, said William Pott, vice chancellor for finance.

"The land was bought to take care of long-range plans at UNCA," said Pott.

"It will probably be several years before we begin building anything on it, but there is room for things like more dormitories and a continuing education center."

Pott said the tract is prime property, "and is composed of two ridges with outstanding views of UNCA, the French Broad river and Grove Park Inn.

"It's completely undeveloped and mostly wooded," said Pott. "There are no buildings of any kind on it."

The only accessible route to the property now is via a road that requires a four-wheel drive vehicle, he said.

"So the first things will be utilities and a road," said Pott.

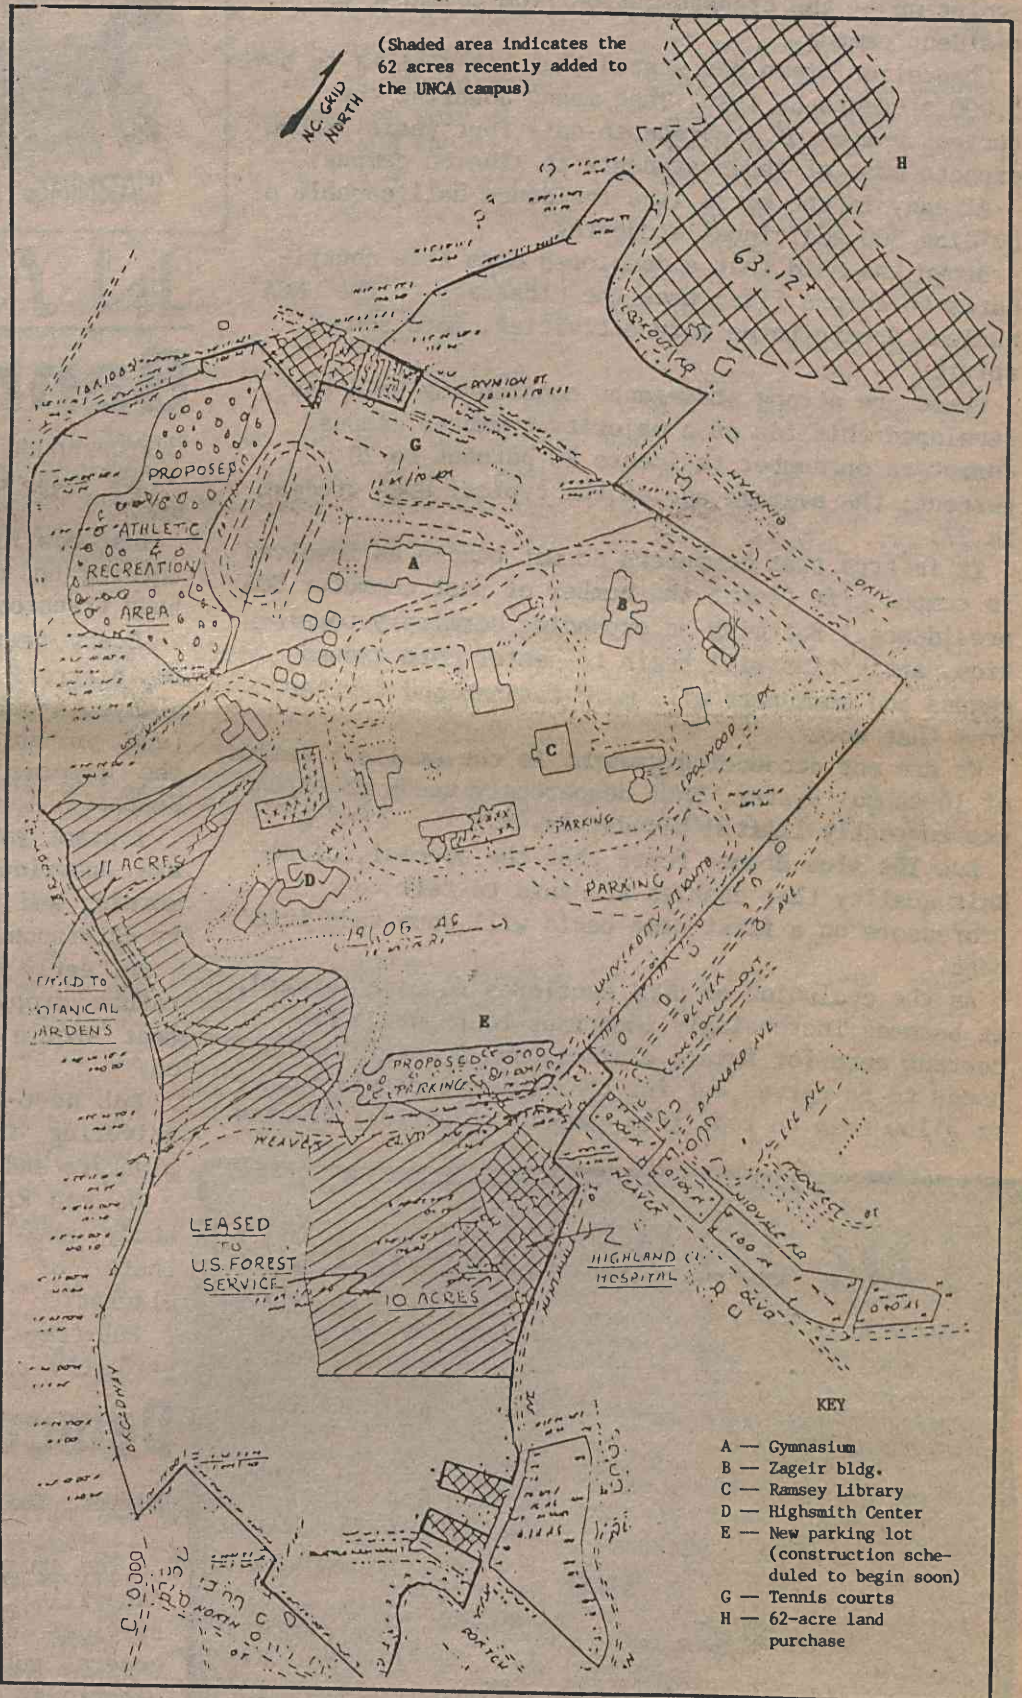

He said the negotiations moved unusually quickly for such a purchase.

"It's been less than a year since negotiations began," said Pott.

"We had the cooperation of everyone involved, the UNCA Board of Trustees, the UNC Board of Governors, the general administration staff at UNC-Chapel Hill, the State Property Office, the state attorney general's office, the State Council, and, of course, Mr. Goodman," said Pott.

Goodman said that he is pleased with the deal.

"If I wasn't happy with it, I wouldn't have done it. And if I hadn't sold it to the state, I would've probably developed it for condos," he said.

Professors stress significance of vice chancellor's replacement

By Scott Luckadoo

A significant position in the campus administration will soon be vacant, and the present holder of the position hopes the person who replaces him will be chosen on the basis of "what he has done, not what committees he has served on."

Dr. Laurence Dorr, current vice chancellor for academic affairs, announced Sept. 24 that he will resign his position next spring.

The next vice chancellor will assume his position in Dorr's shadow, who has been at that post for the past eight years.

Dorr noted that the position ranks second only to the chancellor in the school's administration. He will become a full-time philosophy professor at UNCA in the fall of 1986.

Dorr's accomplishments as vice chancellor have had a major impact on the student body as well as the faculty, according to Apartheid protest planned for Fri.

Two campus clubs are sponsoring an anti-apartheid protest day on the UNCA quadrangle Friday at noon.

The program of music and speakers is designed to recognize the thousands of people arrested, mourn the deaths of over 700 victims of protests in South Africa and present a petition to the government for the defense of human rights in South Africa.

The Black Student Association and College Democrats are sponsoring the event.
