

BELOVED WOMAN DIES DURING HOLIDAYS

Mrs. Laura Wyatt Passes Away At Her Home Near College.

Mrs. Laura Wyatt, a well-known citizen of the community and friend of the college, died at her home on December 23. Her death came as the result of a long illness during which she went about her daily tasks with heroic fortitude. A few days previous to the holidays, Mrs. Wyatt was forced to take to her bed much against her wishes. Thus it was that her death was not unexpected by the host of friends in the college community, though all mourned her loss.

Usually twelve boys were given their meals at her home, living in almost sumptuous style, but any member of the student body as well as the faculty was at liberty always to step into her home and take a meal.

Mrs. Wyatt is survived by her two daughters, Sadie and Dare, now juniors at Flora McDonald College, and a son, who is conductor on a railroad in Wyoming.

WEAVER HALL BURNS DOWN

Starnes for the use of the students. Every one present at the fire seemed more than eager to help, and it was not long before every student was comfortably housed for the night. In the majority of instances, the students will have permanent homes for the school year.

The story would not be complete without giving due credit for the offered services of the Morganton fire department. Eleven minutes after being called, the fire truck was in sight, having made almost a mile per minute in the trip.
