Miss Goode: "I think I will take up horseback riding. It will increase my social standing."

Miss Nahikian: "I don't know about the social part, but it sure will increase your standing."

James Wren: "Is it true that Mitchell is a liar?"

Zeb Malcolm: "Well I don't know as I'd go so far as to say that, but I'll say this—when feeding time comes he can't get his pigs to stir till he gets somebody else to call them for him."

Goodson: "Pardon me, Doctor, but last night your daughter accepted my proposal for marriage. I have called this morning to ask if there is any insanity in your family."

Father: "There must be."

Prof. Weaver: "Young man, how many times have I told you to get to this class on time."

Davis: "I don't know, I thought you were keeping score."

Sexton: "I heard something this morning that certainly opened my eyes."

Palmer: "Yeah, what was it."
Sexton: "The alarm clock."

Surratt: "It rained cats and dogs out our way yesterday."

Wallwork: "Figuratively."

Surrat: "No, literally. The animal cracker factory blew up."

Blakely: "What did your girl say about your mustache?"

"Pat" Cashion: "Gosh, I forgot to show it to her."

Bustle "Why is it that Prof. Garrett can drive through the red lights in Morganton?"

Bronson: "Aw, he's a privileged character."

Avery: "Why is the tip of a dog's tail like the center of a tree?"

Brewer: "Why, indeed, old sap."

Avery: "Because they both are fartherest from the bark."

From a postcard sent by a world touring father to his son in college:
Dear Son:

This is the cliff from which the Spartians used to throw their defective children. Wish you were here.
Love. Dad.

Customer: "I don't like the looks of that haddock."

Fish Dealer: "Lady, if it's looks you're after, why don't you buy a goldfish?"

Dr. Yeuell Gives Illustrated Lecture On "Ben Hur"

Instead of regular prayer meeting service Dr. Yeuell again brought to us a wonderfully illustrated lecture on "Ben-Hur." Although only a few of the scenes from the book could be shown, these portrayed wonderfully the main plot in the story. Dr. Yeuell gave many explanations of portions of the story which cannot be had from merely reading the book.

All the scenes were impressive, but the ones showing the chariot race in which Ben Hur won seemed to be the most outstanding.

These lectures proved to be both interesting and educational and one should strive to hear as many of Dr. Yeuell's lectures as possible.

ORGANIZATION OF STUDENTS

ternoon. The only expenses will be a small registration fee of fifty cents. The delegates will be entertained in private homes. The speakers will be: Dr. Cunningham, a missionary on furlough from Cuba, who will speak in connection with Latin America; Dr. Wenn from Korea; and, Dr. Oliver of Mars Hill, a retired missionary from China.

There will be a banquet given at six o'clock Saturday evening by the students of the Home Economics Department of Appalachian State Teachers College. This will be followed by a mission play, "Ba-Thane," to be presented in the college auditorium by the local Student Volunteer Band.

Much improvement has been shown in the Victorian Literary Society this year. The regular meeting is held every Thursday afternoon with the attendance. At present there are about fifteen members on roll.

On October 26, the society had charge of the chapel program. The president, Miss Hughes, presided. Miss Burns led the devotional after which a very interesting and well spoken recitation, "Peter Sorghum in Love" was given by Miss Nance. The entire program was very well received.

Miss Goode: No two people in the world think alike.

Miss Abernethy: That's what I thought until I went out with two different college boys.

Professor (to Bronson): Mr. Bronson, spell banana.

Mr. Bronson: B-a-n-a-n-a-n. Darn it, professor, I know how to spell it, but I don't know when to stop.
