

CLUBS

Pre - Medical

The Pre-Medical Club met last Tuesday night in the usual meeting place. After the devotionals, led by John James Powell, the following program on "Medicines and Hospitals" was given: "Ancient Medicine," by Carroll Shenk; "Modern Medicine," by Emma Leape; and "Ancient and Modern Hospitals," by Annie Ruth Call. Following this program the subject of "Colds" was discussed by the members. Before adjournment, a definite program was arranged for the next meeting.

Travelers

At the last meeting of the Travel Club the topic of discussion was "Trips Into the Stratosphere." Coerine Self and Frances Watt appeared on the program, making talks on some trips sponsored by the United States Army Air Corps and the National Geographic Society.

Photo - Nature

Boyce Helms gave a most interesting talk on "Reptiles and Birds" at the last meeting of this club. David Ashworth showed some rare stones and arrow-heads which were gathered by the Archeological Society last year.

Fireside

The program for this club was a continuation of that of the previous meeting, being on First Aid. "Bandages" was the chief topic of discussion. Elizabeth Craft, Cora Ann Johnson, and Lunette Cornwell appeared on the program. New members are invited to join this club.

Dramatic

After the roll call at the Dramatic Club meeting, practice of the play, "Skidding," was held.

Journalism

The Journalism Club held its last meeting at Virginia Lodge. Bill Davis had charge of the program, giving a very instructive talk on "The News Story." At the next meeting Mr. Douglas, editor of the TRANSYLVANIA TIMES is to talk before the club. All the members of the CLARION staff are urged to attend.

Chemistry Class Planning Tour

Mr. Trowbridge is completing plans for an observation tour for his chemistry classes in the near future. The classes are going to visit the paper mills at Canton where they will observe the processes by which paper is manufactured. They are also going to Enka to the American Enka Corporation plant to study the making of rayon, and then the students will stop off at the gas plant in Ashville, where the gas is produced for the city use. This trip will be a day long and is being made as a supplement to class work that has been studied recently. About fifty students will make this trip.

Religious Education Courses Announced

Prof. McNeer has announced the following courses will be offered in the spring quarter: Nos. 23 and 24 as listed in the College catalogue; No. 29 will be a 5 hour course instead of 3 hours. Courses 27, 28 and 31 will be combined into one 5 hour course, and it will count on the required hours in religious education. All of these courses are open to both freshmen and sophomores except No. 23 the prerequisite for which is course No. 12 class and take a full period quiz or even to sit on a lecture with a registering mind?

Why not abolish the afternoon classes entirely or at least schedule them fifteen or thirty minutes later? This will undoubtedly prove more satisfactorily.

Writing a column isn't so easy a thing to do as one might suppose. The readers crave gossip, yet there's already a goodly amount in the paper. What are you supposed to do then? Well, the title is supposed to include everything, so here goes:

What does Pruett have that makes the girls so happy? Certain girls aren't especially fond of week-end visitors. We wonder why. Several people are sorry that the basketball season is over. Barney, can't some people acquire the oddest names? Who came out best the other night when Virginia and Donny swapped dates? Could it be a coincidence—two certain people's taking up debating at the same time? Good advertisement: J.W. Williams's aspirin tablets as an after-math. (Shall we form a corporation, Mr. Williams?)

Here are a few scrambled American colleges. See if you can figure them out. The answers will be in next week's column: Abowlmc, Cinnetrop, Fratsnod, Lolcern, Nylesnapvain.

What goes ninety-nine lumps, ninety-nine lumps, ninety-nine lumps? (Answer will also be published next week.)

Simile; Spring football is about as interesting as sitting through a picture show twice.

Ruth Coltrane is beginning to think her gentleman friend prefers blondes.
