

Tale - Tellers

By The above Tale-Tellers

It was great having some of the old students on the campus again. Midge says she feels better now.

Before I knew it some budding under my very own eyes: Nancy and George Lee, Jeanie and "Monk", "Turk" and Frye, and Jane and Roland.

Room-mates are often very generous. Such is the case with Annie Ruth and Ellen L. First one is seen dating Mayhew and then the other.

Young ladies, let this be a warning to you! Never allow extra passengers to ride in your car from a ball game when you are unchaperoned!

Charles and Spencer Scott (Central America and South Carolina respectively) claim that no girl has asked them for a date yet--but-- they wouldn't mind.

Albert Williams seems to find blondes attractive.

What time of night was it when Miss Hayes said "Good-night, Russle?"

Eye-openers at the Biddie Coop over the week-end: Sturgis and Clem, Isabelle and Hicks, Mary Aiken and Frank, and Lois and John Walker.

In competition for Buddy Hunt: Virginia Hunter and Doris Thorne.

That everlasting triangle has hopped up again: Vaughn-Geraldine and Lee Henry. Watch out now!

What about a girl who goes home with her room-mate to date her boy-friend off the campus and then falls in love with another guy? Be ashamed, Margaret.

Earl, you'd better watch Eva. She was seen with that Rogers boy last Sunday.

Berta Fields and Gussie Rose were dating boys from State College last week-end.

Margaret Ryan says it seems funny to have her mother in college at the same time she is.

A suggested romance: Lucy Strum and Charles Woodson.

Wonder why Lucille McKinney has been fixing up so lately?

Don't be surprised if Bernice begins to gain weight. She received a sample of Peruna through the mail last week. Don't believe all you hear over the radio, Bernice.

All good things come at once, don't they Lib? Here's hoping he will ask you again sometime!

Carrying a rod does not make a Moses. --Proverb.

Burt Weed Loomis

Is he a Northerner? One branch of his family comes from Massachusetts. Or is he a Southerner? The other parent is a native of Virginia. And Burt Weed Loomis himself hails from a Belgrade, Missouri farm. If you ask me, he's another victim of the "melting-pot". Dr. Loomis' ancestors on the paternal side owned Sagamore Hill on Long Island before Theodore Roosevelt bought it, and his mother's people were directly related to Jefferson Davis. What a man!

Dr. Loomis has made his own way since he was seventeen years old. He received his Normal Diploma from Missouri State College, located at Cape Girardeau. He was principal of Flat River High School, Missouri for five years after graduation; but he decided that he needed some more education. He then matriculated at the University of Missouri and received a B. S. degree, went on to Columbia University, New York, and graduated with a Master's degree. While Dr. Loomis was in college, he belonged to many honorary, social, and fraternal organizations among which are the Phi Delta Kappa, and Phi Gamma Mu.

When Dr. Loomis had received his M. A., he entered immediately into the field of Education. He was superintendent of schools at Ironton, Missouri, for three years, professor of psychology at Missouri State Teacher's College in Warrensburg for five years, and State High School Inspector for Missouri after that. Then Dr. Loomis went to Perry Point, Maryland, where he was made training officer of the Federal Board for Vocational Education. He was connected with the rehabilitation department. After this work was completed, Dr. Loomis went back to another state teacher's college in Missouri. This one is located at Maryville. Here he was head of the department of Education. Dr. Loomis became superintendent of schools at Flat River.

Dr. Loomis began thinking one day that he did not know enough to suit himself, so he packed up and went to Peabody College; and in 1932 he received his Ph.D. He was connected with the faculty of Limestone College for four years, and this year he joined us. We feel very fortunate indeed to have such a person among us.

Dr. Loomis is a man to be honored for his perseverance. He has really made education a career.

Mnemosynean Initiation

Tomorrow night at ten o'clock the Mnemosynean Literary Society will have its annual initiation ceremony in the auditorium. The faculty and the officers of the Delphians, the brothers society, are invited.

The aim is inspiration of old members and formal acceptance of the new. Laurel, the symbol of the society, will be used for decoration. An impersonation of Mnemosyne, the Goddess of Memory, and her daughters, the nine Muses, will be given by members of the society. As each new member is accepted, a sprig of laurel will be given her.

Republican Party Organized

At a called meeting of the Republicans of Brevard College last Monday, October 19, a party was organized; and the Honorable Frank Patton of Raleigh was invited to speak to the students at an early date.

Sturgis May was elected chairman of the party, and Grover Boyd was elected to serve as acting chairman in case of the chairman's absence. Party literature was collected in order to acquaint the members more thoroughly with the platform of the party.

The aim of the party is to familiarize the students with the election of the officers of our state and national government.

This week's question is "What Kind of Person Do you Prefer to Date?"

Doris Thorne: "Good looking, personality, fairly good conversationalist."

Mary Helen Teague: "I want to date an ideal man-James Crouse for instance."

Helen Dillard: "Hit don't make no difference to me."

Frank Coble: "Brunette, and good talker."

Sara Barkley: "Short and blonde."

Majorie Whisnant: "Not serious but friendly."

Turner Feezor: "One without a chaperone."

Frank Bahnson: "A nice quiet girl with a twin sister and one who doesn't talk about snakes."

David Grubbs: "A brunette who doesn't talk so much."

Edwina Brooks: "Sarcastic and intelligent."

Ruth Howard: "First looks, then personality."

Mary Aiken: "Courteous."

Margaret Miller: "Boys who do not think it's cute to be rude and silly."

Charlie Lou Washington: "A tall handsome cave man."

Jeanette Gable: "The ficker the better. Maybe he'll fall for me."

Lucille McKinney: "Good Christian boy Low and dark. Good talker."

Mary Palmer: "Generous."

Ruth Brewer: "Dignity, above all things."

Evelyn Swaringen: "First, taller than I, and lots of personality."

James Crouse: "Have you not noticed?"

Majorie Parnell: "Wit, courtesy, and honesty, but the greatest of these is honesty."

Sara B. Cashion: "I like 'em crazy." (I think she will find plenty of them around here.)

Bernice Brantly: "Not any. (?)"

The girls in bathing suits last summer looked as if they were all from Missouri.
